New York to California Colorado a Winter Resort Earth's Champion Turkey What a Country This Is

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

THIS IS WRITTEN on The Chief, Santa Fe fast train, leaving Chicago at 11:15 a. m., cutting one night from the coast to coast trip.

Bitterly cold weather through Illinois and into Kansas City, which will soon be as big as Chicago is now.

Then through Kansas, wonderful, placid state, where prohibition was taken seriously long before prohibition entered the Constitution.

Magnificent wide fields, thousands of cattle and pigs nibbling grass above the thin snow, enormous piles of straw, worth little where they stand, worth $25 a ton in New York.

From Kansas "The Chief" climbs up hill into Colorado, the high state.

At La Junta, 4500 feet above sea level, passengers and children leave the train for the first time, amazed at warm sunshine at such an altitude.

F. G. Bonfils, whose Denver Post blankets this part of the world, should advertise Colorado as a winter resort. It will be a winter resort, and crowded, when flying is fully developed.

Colorado has the Rocky Mountains, the fine capitol with gold covered dome in Denver, just one mile above the ocean, magnificent slopes covered with beautiful blue spruce, where you may still see footprints of dinosaurs left in the sandstone.

And Colorado owns "Lady Bird," hen turkey that won the grand championship sweepstakes at the International Show in Chicago.

To possess the Rocky Mountains AND the champion hen turkey of the world, to say nothing of rainbow trout that weigh ten pounds, is worth while.

You pass from Colorado into beautiful New Mexico, as all the world there is no sky more beautiful, no weather more perfect, no air more glorious. You realize the futility of trying to select "the best state in the Union."

Just ahead is Arizona. Colonel Boyce Thompson says that is the finest land on earth.

It possesses the Grand Canyon, first wonder of the world.

Then Nevada, a little to the north, land of precious metals.

And then California, stretching a thousand miles along the Pacific with giant redwood and sprightly Hollywood.

And to the north, great Oregon and Washington, with pines 14 feet in diameter, 700 years old, and half of the nation's water power.

Back, far to the south, its northern boundary south of California's southern line, is Florida, sun parlor of the East, with fertility to feed the whole nation. To the northeast, New York, with the tickers and all the money.

A giant Texas, biggest of all, an empire among 48 states and the other Gulf States. Lazy States and New England not even mentioned.

It's a wonderful country. Every American should see it all, and let his children see it. Our railroads offer the maximum of luxurious comfort. Or an automobile will take you and your family anywhere for as little as you choose to spend.

It is such a fine country that we really ought to retain exclusive control of it, and not let any League of Nations Court tell us what to do about its resources and responsibilities. George Washington managed that with fewer than 4,000,000 people. Why cannot we do it, with 120,000,000?

Mr. Murdock's Wichita Eagle, able Kansas newspaper, tells a disappointing story of a "tenth birthday victory dinner" in honor of prohibition. Three hundred were expected, only 130 came "because it was so cold."

An honest "wet" suggests that if beer and wine had been part of the dinner, the "noble three hundred" would have found a way through the snow some how.

Mayor Lawrence of Wichita warns prohibitionists that their most dangerous enemy is ridicule. If is, he says, "the sharpest and deadliest weapon." "Wets will be interested in that.

Governor Reed of Kansas told the gallant 130 that prohibition will surely stay, "but it will take another generation before it will be satisfactorily enforced." That seems a long time to endure bootlegging and its crime wave.

Landry Lays Killing to Lalone; Wide Hunt on for 2 Connecticut Fugitives

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 20—Leo Landry, of Revere, Mass., escaped convict from Connecticut State Prison, was captured here today.

He signed a confession that Roland G. Lalone, of Worcester, Mass., and Watson Moulthorpe, other members of the trio that fled from Wethersfield, fired the shots that killed one detective and wounded another here on Friday.

Lalone, the "ice box bandit," and Moulthorpe, escaped in a stolen car after the gun battle, Landry said, while he hid under a house.

Although armed when taken, Landry denied having fired when the detectives attempted to arrest him.

He was captured in a drug store through the efforts of two pedestrians who suspected him and notified the police.

Search for Lalone and Moulthorpe is being made throughout the South. Before Landry's admission of identity, the convict title from Connecticut was believed to have been surrounded in a swamp outside Macon, Ga.

When posses closed in on the three men, however, they proved to be escaped convicts from the West Virginia penitentiary. One man named Byas was wounded

Stimson Urges Delegates to Show Good Will; Cites American Friendship

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—An earnest plea that the powers of the world take their places at the naval arms limitation conference with a will to obtain results beneficial to mankind was made today by Henry L. Stimson, United States Secretary of State, at the British Government banquet preliminary to the opening of the meetings.

The American secretary spoke at the conference as one of the rare occasions of history out of which a permanent step toward peace for all nations might be given impetus.

"It is a great pleasure," he said, "to acknowledge the gracious hospitality with which we have been received by our hosts on this occassion. It also is a great privilege to speak for the visiting delegations to the conference and to voice our appreciation of this invitation and of the importances of the occasion for which we are met. I am confident that each of our nations appreciates the greatness of this opportunity.

MYSTERIOUS FREAK OF WEATHER BLAMED

Fog a Contributory Cause In Forcing California Air Liner to Fly Low

Los Angeles Jan. 20—Sixteen charred and mangled bodies lay in the morgue at Oceanside today as reminders of the crash of a giant T. A. T.-Maddux air liner while returning to Los Angeles with a group of week-end visitors to Agua Caliente, Mexico.

The 16 met death at Oceanside when the transport faltered down out of the sky struck a hillside, plowed a big gash in the earth, burst into flames and became a gasoline-fed funeral pyre.

None of the eight women and eight men aboard the transport lived to tell the story and all but three were burned beyond recognition.

A "peculiar weather mystery" was blamed by the T. A. T.-Maddux officials for the crash.

An investigation into the accident was being made under the direction of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, an official of the line.

Witnesses, including a Western Express pilot who saw the big liner take its human cargo to a fiery doom, agreed that the ill-fated craft had been fighting against a thick fog which forced aerial traffic beneath a dangerously low 2000-foot ceiling.

Others who heard the crash and were struck with horror when they saw licking flames hurried to the spot, only to find a pile of red hot metal.

Spectators could but stand by, powerless knowing that all the plane's occupants were beyond the reach of human aid. The great plane, apparently snagging the hillside with a wingtip, tore through the soft soil many yards, breaking wide open the cabin. Seething in flames from burst fuel tanks, it piled into a crumpled mass that spared not a single life.

THE DEAD

Edward J. Bowen, president of the Union Pipe and Tank Co., Los Angeles.

Mrs. Edward J. Bowen, his wife, widely known in California society.

W. W. Paden, Los Angeles realtor, residing in Monrovia.

Mrs. Richard Cantillon, wife of a prominent Los Angeles attorney.

Mrs. Adie Glover, her mother.

Miss Frances Jamieson, Los Angeles.

Charles Rayboldt.

Cedric Brown, assistant to the president of the Maddux line.

Basil Russell, pilot of the plane.

Fred Walker, assistant pilot.

Mrs. Collsten.

Miss Squibb.

Two of the first persons to reach the wreck, Lieut. Virgil Westbrook, army flier, and Police Chief Forest Eaton of San Clemente, agreed that the plane struck the hillside at an angle and that three of the bodies had been thrown clear of the wreckage.

TRAPPED IN PLANE

The other 13 were piled forward in the steel cabin that had turned into a red hot death chamber.

Eaton said it appeared that in trying to land on sloping ground the right wing had dipped and hit the hillside, hurling the craft sidewise and breaking it apart in the middle.

"When the first rescuers arrived," said Westbrook, "they were

Baby Girl Riding in Auto With Mother Killed by Rum Sleuths

YOU may think the prohibition deaths detailed in these newspapers in the past are outrageous. They are not exceptional nor extraordinary. Here is another case, as reported by the Washington Herald from a Missouri newspaper, and read into the Congressional Record:

"Clinton, Mo., Jan. 23—Just why a deputy constable and his posse couldn't halt a motor car without firing at its occupants and killing a six-year-old girl, many Henry County citizens are unable to understand.

"Little Eleanor Harigan was killed late yesterday near Windsor, Mo., when her father, William Harigan of Montrose, Mo., wouldn't stop his car when ordered to do so by T. G. Hall, a deputy constable of Windsor. Mr. Harigan says he believed Hall and his posse were holdup men.

"Word had gone out from a farmer that he had seen two motor cars which aroused his suspicions. The farmer notified authorities at Windsor. Hall formed a posse and went in pursuit.

"'Ah, bootleggers!' thought the posse as the trail was followed.

"Returning to Windsor, the men saw an old Buick car. In it rode Eleanor, her father, her mother and her aunt. When Harigan refused to stop his car a shot was fired into the car by Hall or a member of his posse. The little girl slumped in her seat dead."

Now turn to Page 4 and read another of those gripping stories by Winifred Black, in which she reveals the tragedies of the innocents and the heartlessness of the knaves.

URGE CHANGE IN AUTO LAW

To dispose of minor infractions of the motor vehicle laws without criminal records, a change in the handling of offenders was urged today at a hearing before the legislative committee on Judiciary.

Among sponsors of the plan were representatives of the state department of public works, safety organizations and automobile clubs, the registrar of motor vehicles and various members of the legislature.

Prof. Miller S. McClintock, traffic expert, one of the drafters of the plan, explained the change to the committee. Every policeman who observes a minor infraction, he said, would give notice to the violator to appear before the district court clerk.

Upon receipt of a confession of guilt, the clerk would impose a fine

Hub Loses Bean Honor But Clings to Cod

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP)—Boston may still be the home of the Cabots and cod, but the cherished illusion that it also is the home of the bean was shattered today when several hundred gentlemen who are supposed to know their vegetables gathered for the 23d annual convention of the American Canners' convention.

E. S. Cosgrove, Le Seur, Minn., head of the Minnesota Valley Canning Co., said Boston has only one —or at the most two—canning factories specializing in beans. Massachusetts, New York and Maine together produce less than one-seventh of the bean output of Indiana, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Other popular beliefs will go by the board during the meeting, delegates said, for Wisconsin does not put up the most kraut, Iowa is not the tall corn state from a canning standpoint, and New England does not keep clam chowder on the menu.

GLADYS PARK TO SERVE 2½ YEARS

Camden, N. J., Jan. 20 (AP)—Gladys May Parks today was sentenced to serve 2½ years at hard labor for the death of Dorothy Rogers, four years old, and her brother, Timothy, two years.

Convicted by a jury late Saturday night, Supreme Court Justice Frank T. Lloyd sentenced her to 2½ years on the charge of second degree murder for the death of Dorothy, and to 10 years on the manslaughter charge for the death of the boy. The sentences run concurrently.

The 35-year-old prisoner took the sentences stoically, facing Justice Lloyd at a distance of not more than three feet and listening intently.

As she turned away from the judge's bench, Miss Parks apparently was in no rage. Her face was flushed her eyes flashed and the fairly flung herself off the low platform.

A woman deputy attempted to slip a comforting arm about her shoulders but, with a quick twist she flung it off and stamped toward the door.

DRY REPEAL MOVE IN HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—Asserting that "as an experiment, noble or otherwise, prohibition has failed," Representative Mary K. Norton (D.), New Jersey, an anti-dry, introduced a resolution today to amend the Constitution to permit a referendum on the question of repealing the Eighteenth amendment.

The proposal would be submitted by the states to voters at the first general Congressional election three months after the adoption of the resolution.

If a majority voted for repeal the 18th Amendment would no longer be a part of the Constitution, but Congress would retain power to prohibit interstate transportation of liquor in violation of state laws and no state would be permitted to have saloons.

Mrs. Norton said in a statement that, in introducing the resolution, she believed she was voicing the sentiment "of the best thinking men and women of America."

"Women who believe, as I do, in temperance," she added, "realize that as an experiment, noble or otherwise, prohibition has failed."

Representative Sirovich (D.) of New York, today urged President Hoover to recommend legislation that denatured alcohol be processed with non-poisonous materials.

Eaken for all the nations of the earth.

"Those conditions are mutual good will and an honest effort on the part of each one of us to understand the circumstances and difficulties which surround our sister nations here represented.

"I earnestly plead for such good will and such an endeavor. I earnestly plead that we approach this conference table with no desire to overreach our fellow-countrymen, but with asincere wish to obtain a result which will be faithful and beneficial to all.

"No other result will stand the test of time. No other accomplishment of this conference will be permanent.

"The chief purpose of our meeting is to transform the process of naval armament from a method of competition to one of mutual agreement and limitation. Economy is only an important by-product of such an end.

"Our real aim is to remove the secrecy, the rivalry, the mutual irritation which invariably attends the precedent of competition in armament and to leave each nation free to have an adequate national defense which will yet not be a source of wory and suspicion to its neighbors.

HOW U. S. FEELS

"Manifestly such a result can only be obtained by frankness and good will. Manifestly if any one of us leaves this conference feeling that his country has been coerced into an unfavorable agreement our chief purpose will not have been attained. A sense of injury will remain as a rankling sore to poison our mutual relations in future years.

"I think I can pledge you that the American delegation is sincerely endeavoring to carry out the lofty purposes of their chief, the President of the United States, who, in the conference in such a spirit of frankness and good will.

"We are honored that His Majesty the King, whose hospitality we have enjoyed today and whose subjects from all parts of the British commonwealth of nations are represented h... conference, will open our deliberations.

"We also feel that we are most fortunate in the personality of the gentleman who is the chief delegate of the nation which is our host—the Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald. Mr. MacDonald, upon his recent visit to the United States made a deep and lasting impression upon our countrymen. They were strongly attracted by his character. They followed his utterances with deep approval. To them he seemed the personification of international good will and of a lofty desire for peace on earth.

NO SECRET ACCORD.

"This visit was neither intended to, nor did in any way, negotiate changes in the official relations of the countries. By my countrymen regard Mr. MacDonald's connection with this conference as an earnest of the good will which they hope will animate its councils.

"We feel that we have a fortunate augury also in our friendly and sympathetic relations with each of the other three nations represented here. The feelings of this average American citizen for France are flavored with an affection which dates back to the foundations of our nation and which received a new and hopeful impulse in our admiration for her valiant fight for human liberty in the great war.

"Our ties with Italy stretch between thousands of homes in either country, and America has followed Italy's rapid growth in union and nationality during the past century with keen interest and admiration.

"Towards Japan we have not only a friendship and esteem based on long and intimate association since the earliest days of her intercourse with western nations, but also a high appreciation of her vital service to the world as a great stabilizing force in the Far East.

"Knowing these facts and sentiments as I do, I have no hesitation in pledging you the success of the coming conference. I feel confident that each of us in the spirit which I have referred to will join in a common effort to make of this meeting a great and notable landmark in humanity's progress towards that time when nations will dwell together in permanent confidence and amity, and when all of their questions will be settled by the methods of justice and friendship and never by the arbitrament of force."

King Welcomes Delegates and Wishes Parley Well

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—King George, who will make his first recent public appearance tomorrow to open the naval disarmament conference, today received all the delegates to the conference at Buckingham Palace.

Prime Minister MacDonald was the first of the chief delegates to arrive at the palace and had an audience with his majesty before the general reception.

The other delegates rode to the grand entrance of the palace into the inner courtyard whence they were conducted to the picture gallery next to the throne room on the floor.

When all had assembled, the delegates filed into the larges of room where the prime minister introduced them to the King, the chief delegates of each nation, who in turn presented their compatriots.

The King, who was in morning dress, shook hands cordially with the delegates and expressed the hope that the conference deliberations would be crowned with success.

Japs Pin Hope on New Trust Among Nations

Tokyo, Jan. 20 (AP)—Premier Hamaguchi, on the eve of the opening of the Five-Power Naval Arms Conference at London, today made an optimistic statement declaring Japan's hopes for success of the parley.

"Japan, the premier said, was determined to contribute to the limit of her ability to make the conference a success, a triumph of good sense and good will." He expressed Japan's hope that the "newly developed spirit of trust among nations, which we have written into the treaty outlawing war will put the world's feet pointing this task free from many of the fears and suspicions which have hampered our former efforts."

CROOKER LOSES 'DUCK' FIGHT

An attempt by Conrad W. Crooker, head of the Liberal Civic League of Boston, to take Capt. Charles Van Ambergh, firearms expert, aboard the rum cruiser Black Duck, failed today in federal court at Providence.

A petition for an injunction restraining Henry M. Boss, Jr., federal district attorney at Providence, and Emery San Souci, collector of the port of Providence, from interfering with the boarding was denied by the court.

To the court, Crooker said:

"We want to go aboard there with men competent enough to reconstruct what happened when the Black Duck encountered the CG 290 and three men on the Black Duck were shot to death.

"Up to the present time no competent expert has been aboard the Black Duck to determine the positions of the two boats and the line of fire."

Lindy to Probe Crash That Killed 16 unable to reach any of the 13 bodies in the burning cabin. It was a roaring furnace. Metal parts of the plane were melted.

The wreckage burned for seven hours and efforts to quench the flames were practically futile.

William Van Duesen, a passenger of the San Diego board of trade who was returning by air to San Diego, Cal., last night, said:

"Russell was flying low to the coast line in sight. He had seen a heavy rainstorm in the north and decided he must turn back.

"Russell evidently tried to bank to the left over the ocean to make the turn. As he banked a downcurrent drove the plane just far enough earthward for the left wing tip to strike the ground of a little rise. We found the ruby port light that had been torn off the left wing tip.

"The jar crumpled the wing and hurled the plane to earth more than 100 feet from the point of the first impact.

"The crumpling of the wing also opened seams in the gas tanks, which were carried in the wing, and that loosed the gasoline which caught fire from the motors.

"The flares were intact. Hence we may assume that Russell had no intention of trying to land.

"The propellers were so wound up that we are sure that the three motors were working perfectly.

"One of the fire extinguishers in the cabin had been taken down and the handle pulled back. From that it appears death was not instantaneous for all in the cabin."

The plane, one of the latest all-metal, tri-motored ships to ply the T. A. T.-Maddux airways, which earlier in the day had flown to Agua Caliente laden with joyous week-end sightseers intent upon a quest for pleasure in the Lower California resort, took off for the return trip to Los Angeles at 5:30 p. m.

A wrist watch found on the body of Pilot Russell, its crystal and face smashed, had stopped at 6:30 o'clock. Russell's body, hands still clutching the steering wheel, was found buried beneath the forward mold.

Robert Hansen of San Clemente, another witness, said he saw the plane circling in an apparent effort to make a safe landing, and a few minutes later he heard the crash.

"The motors were missing and the pilot appeared to be in trouble," Hansen said. "When I reached the scene after the crash the last shreds of inflammable material were burned away and the metal frame was glowing hot.

"I could see about a dozen bodies huddled in the passenger compartment. All of their clothing had been burned away and I am sure all were dead when I reached the spot."

Col. Lindbergh, a company official, was in San Diego and was notified of the tragedy. He immediately assumed charge of operations and informed Airways officials of the crash.

He did not go to the scene, stating that nothing could be accomplished by such a move.

Col. Lindbergh said neither he nor anyone else was in a position to say what might have caused the wreck.

"We will make every possible effort to determine the cause of this unfortunate mishap," he said, "and when daylight comes and a thorough examination of the wreckage can be made it may be possible to learn what occurred."

Bodies of all 16 dead are in charge of the San Diego County coroner. An inquest will be held today.

The tragedy resulted in the disaster of last September when a westbound air transport crashed into the side of Mt. Taylor near Grants, New Mexico, with a loss of eight persons. Among the victims were Mrs. Clara Bass Short, San Diego, Cal., last surviving member of the army aviator killed in midair with an airliner bound Maddux liner, hurling both planes to earth.

It recalled also the recent midair collision of two moving picture camera planes above the Pacific ocean off San Vicente, Cal., in which two pilots and eight film company employes were killed.

SHOW BOAT CO. WINS POINT IN STOCK SALE

Public Utilities Commission Still Has the Case Under Advisement, However

Show Boat, Inc., which was formed to convert a schooner into a floating dine and dance palace, sale of whose stock was forbidden by the Public Utilities Commission, today scored a point when the case came up on appeal before the commission.

John C. Johnston, counsel for the corporation, claimed no fraud order had been issued by the department and that adequate and full information had been filed.

Silas P. Waite, chief inspector of the sale of securities division of the department, replying to questions from Chairman Henry C. Attwill, admitted no fraud order had been issued pending receipt of information asked. Waite said he was ready to offer "evidence of fraud or informalion of fraud."

ORDER IS OVERRULED.

Atty. Johnston argued that the question to be decided was whether the commission was in possession of evidence at the time of the alleged order to justify it, forbidding the sale.

The commission retired and later Chairman Attwill announced the stock of the corporation, being exempt under the statutes, the order forbidding its sale was without authority of law.

However, the commission further ruled that the order of notice issued on the holding of a hearing was sufficient for Inspector Waite to proceed. Johnston took exception and the case proceeded.

JOHNSTON REVIEWS CASE

Johnston stated that the corporation, after filing what it regarded as full and adequate information, had been aggrieved by the commission's finding and were present today asking for justification of the order.

"We filed a very full and detailed statement in reply to the commission's questionnaire," he said. "But we were informed by a department investigator that the answers were not satisfactory."

He said that one of the objections was that the company sold more stock than was authorized. This was not correct, he said, and a detailed statement of every share sold had been given.

Labor Union League Mulls Parade Plans

Plans for a parade of 20,000 unemployed in Boston were announced today at a meeting of the executive committee of the League of Labor Union, which passed on City Hall and presented Mayor Curley with a long list of communistic demands.

About 100 persons were present at a meeting which was held in a Harrison ave. hall. Evald Anderson, general organizer of the league, and Samuel Wynn addressed the audience, attacking city and state officials.

REVERE RELIEF PLAN TO COST $3,000,000

Proposed Highways to Solve Beach Traffic Problem Explained by Hale

Construction plans for highways to cost $3,000,000 for relief of traffic congestion on Revere Beach parkway at Revere Beach, were heard today by the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs.

Richard K. Hale, associate commissioner of public works, said the plans were drawn up by his department and provides for a part of the cost being borne by the State.

The first roadway Hale discussed would run from a point near Day sq., East Boston, across the marshes and over Revere Beach parkway by an overpass, thence to the North Shore rd. This he said, would be established as a State highway at a cost of $2,000,000.

AWAITS TUNNEL PLAN

He explained work could not be started until Boston decided on the site for the East Boston end of the proposed traffic tunnel or bridge.

The department, he said, recommends extension of Squires rd., in Revere, from Broadway to Revere Beach, at a cost of $685,000, to take care of traffic from Malden, Medford, Everett and points northwest.

Other proposals he said, were widening a road parallel with Revere Beach parkway at the beach for through traffic to Lynn and beyond. Ocean ave., he said, would be the most advisable for this project.

FAVORS OVERPASS

An overpass, he said, would solve the traffic congestion problem at Revere Beach parkway and Broadway, Revere.

The new marsh road from Day sq. would be paid for by the State as far as Revere Beach parkway and from that point by Revere or the Metropolitan District Commission.

The extension of Squires rd. should be paid for by other agencies than the State, he said.

Objection to having Revere pay more than the share as a city in the metropolitan district was voiced by Senator Cosmo Prudino of Revere and Reps. Augustine Airola and Thomas Carroll.

and the case would be disposed of without a criminal record. If three offenses occurred in a 12-month period under the jurisdiction of the court, steps would then be taken for criminal trial.

The speaker claimed that the proposed legislation could be carried out without additional machinery or extra expense.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker declared that he felt the change is advisable.

Although the Massachusetts Safety Council has not p ed on the recommendation, the president of that association, John H. Sherburne, said it has from time to time made recommendations along the same lines.

Lloyd A. Blanchard, secretary of the Governor's street and highway safety committee, contended that the change would add materially to the committee's program for accident prevention.

Among others recorded for the measure were M. F. Stoddard of the Boston Automobile Club, Chester I. Campbell of the governor's council, Capt. Charles F. Sessions of the state police, and Secretary Frank Grinnell of the Massachusetts Judicial Council.

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 20 (AP)—Col. N. G. Osborn, president of the state prison directors, today confirmed the resignation of George Patterson, deputy warden of the state prison at Wethersfield, and said it was an "administration matter."

The resignation, Col. Osborn said, came after a hearing which which the board had made into the escape of three prisoners, Roland Lalons, Leo Landry and Watson Moulthrope, three weeks ago.

Burton J. Caswell, assistant deputy warden, has been promoted to deputy warden.

The report that prison officials heard rumors of a planned outbreak last August, Col. Osborn said, was correct.

18 KILLED BY COLD WAVE, 8 IN SOUTHLAND

Men, Women and Children Found Dead in Freezing Temperatures

New York, Jan. 20—Two deaths were on record today in the coldest weather experienced in the metropolitan area this winter.

It was much colder in Pennsylvania and three deaths occurred in that State.

The cold wave, which carried sub-zero weather to the recesses of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia and the mountains of Arkansas in the Southland, has written a death list of eight names.

In Chicago the cold had moderated today, but not until it had cost the lives of five persons, three of them infants.

The mercury reached a minimum of 10 degrees above zero in New York. A 70-year-old woman was found dead in bed in her unheated apartment in West Fifty-fourth st. A man was found dead in a doorway on the Bowery.

18 BELOW ZERO.

In Pennsylvania the lowest temperature was recorded at York, where the mercury fell to 18 degrees below zero. Two deaths from accidents caused by heavy snow and one from exposure occurred in various parts of the State.

Sheriff John W. Owens, 46, and W. B. Jones, 62, chancery court clerk, froze to death near Canton, Miss. A boat in which they were hunting on Big Black river capsized and, after swimming ashore, they became lost trying to make their way to shelter. Willis O. Walker, formerly of St. Joseph, Mo., died at Zwolle, La., from exposure.

FIND 3 BABES DEAD.

Traffic mishaps previously had taken three lives while an unidentified negro froze to death in Tennessee and a Louisiana planter was injured fatally in a slip on the ice.

A baby was found dead in its crib in Chicago, having been overcome by coal gas in the kitchen stove, which had been kept burning because of the severe cold. Another was suffocated by extra blankets placed over his bed, and a third was burned to death when coveriets of his crib caught fire from a stove. Ethan Ralph, 45, was found dead of cold in his basement home and Christopher Weybe, 67, died of exposure.

PRINCE HAILED BY CAPETOWN

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Duke of Connaught, Castle, with the Prince of Wales and his party abroad, arrived here today.

The prince will remain in Capetown for a few days before continuing to the interior, where he will resume the hunt for big game and the tour of Britain's African possessions interrupted when illness of his father called him back to England a year ago.

Capetown gave a magnificent reception to the prince, though he came on a private holiday. Every vantage point from the docks along the route to Government House was occupied by spectators.

The prince was on deck at dawn this morning in order to catch a first glimpse of the famous Table Mountain. Clad in a blue silk dressing gown over his pajamas, he was up at 5 a. m. Despite the cold, the prince remained to see the first rays of the sun light up the grim summit of the mountain.

RADIO CARRIES MAIL FLIERS THROUGH FOG ON "RED RIBBON"

DOT AND DASH KEEP PILOTS ON COURSE

Beam Thrown From Boston to New York by Federal Station

Fog, the nemesis of aviators, which has caused many fatal crashes, has been conquered on the air mail routes in and out of Boston, it was revealed today.

Since November the Airways Division of the United States Department of Commerce, under the supervision of Ralph C. Soney of Wollaston, chief operator, has been successfully operating the latest fog defying devices.

These consist of the new radio light beam, teletype, and radio phone, operating 24 hours a day with four men on six hour shifts from the new Government station WSX on Castle Island.

GUIDE PILOTS TO LAND

This will also explain the multitude of red lights, resembling two huge Christmas trees, on Castle Island at night, which have aroused the curiosity of many people.

The lights serve two purposes. They are attached to aerial masts 125 feet high and serve to point them out to fliers, and also act as markers of Boston harbor and the Boston airport.

The radio light beam is thrown from Boston to New York, tapering at both ends, and serves as a line over which a pilot flies his ship in fog.

When on the course he receives in his headset a steady series of dashes in code. If he veers to the left he gets a dot-dash, and if to the right a dash-dot, so that he is always aware of his position with reference to the light beam.

As the pilot approaches his destination the radio beam becomes narrower, and arriving over the field, by pushing a button he is in radio telephonic communication with the station. The button automatically turns on a transmitter at the station, and the pilot talks through a microphone suspended before him in the cockpit.

LEARN LOCATION

He gets instructions from the station as to his exact location, and pilots have been able to set their ships down on the field in a dense fog by complying with instructions telephoned by an operator on the ground.

In addition to these safety devices, weather reports are broadcast hourly, to and from all parts of the country. Pilots in the air may receive these reports as well as the stations. The stations also receive weather reports by the teletype system, which operates automatically.

In addition to this apparatus it was stated that within the next 50 days television will be added to the other safeguards. Photographic maps will be sent through the air to pilots, showing the country over which they must fly, with exact weather conditions in each area, and the various land and danger marks emphasized, together with the wind velocity.

This unimposing building is the hub of the system by which science overcomes the fog hazard of fliers. It is the radio beam transmitting station at Castle Island.

The mysterious red lights which flicker from this mast at Castle Island have been explained as Station WSX radio towers, guiding night fliers to a safe landing

Here is Chief Operator Ralph C. Soney of Wollaston at work in the radio station of the Airway Division, U. S. Department of Commerce, on Castle Island. Soney supervises the fog defying devices which enable fliers from Boston to New York to make the journeys free from this peril. The system is composed of the new radio light beam, teletype and radio phone, operating 24 hours a day.

House, Not 'Low'; Can Abolish Presidency

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—Speaker Longworth objects to the appellation "lower branch of Congress" when the people speak of the House of Representatives.

The constitution, he said today, gives the Senate and House extensive and equal powers, and the Supreme Court has ruled that the two branches have balanced authority and that neither an "upper or a lower house" exists in Congress.

"Historical, editorial and news writers, particularly those away from Washington," he explained, "as well as some prominent news commentators broadcasting over the radio, have been guilty of this."

He pointed out that the constitution divided the powers of the branches so the House could deal with internal affairs and the Senate with external matters.

"The House is vested with the sole power to originate bills raising revenue," he said. "The Senate has the power to approve treaties with foreign governments and sanction diplomatic appointments. In addition, the House originates all general appropriation bills and could eliminate any branch of government, if it desired, merely by refusing to approve any measure.

Should the House decline to appropriate for either the White House or the supreme court the chief executive and the highest judicial tribunal would cease to function, he said in explaining the great basic power of the House.

The Senate, he continued, has lost much of its power formerly exercised through amendments to revenue and appropriation measures due to the creation of the budget bureau and the handling of all appropriation measures by the House appropriations committee.

2 CHASERS SAVE TUG AND BARGE

Gloucester, Jan. 20—The Boston tug Francis Hershey and a loaded Standard Oil Co. barge were saved from grounding on Bass Rocks today after the tug's engines became disabled.

Distress whistles blown by the tug were heard on shore and a telephone call sent to base 7 of the coast guard.

Two 75-foot rum chasers were sent from the base and found the heavy barge was being swept shoreward by the tide and swell and was dragging the disabled tug with it.

One patrol boat took the barge in tow and brought it into harbor. The tug was taken in tow by the other coast guard craft.

MICHAEL FAGAN, TRAINER, DIES

New Redford, Jan. 20 (AP)—Michael J. Fagan, for many years a prominent figure in sporting circles hereabouts, died today.

Fagan served as trainer for many athletes. Mr. Fagan was steward aboard the famous schooner America when Gen. Benjamin F. Butler owned the yacht in 1879. He was known as "Tight Barney" Fagan after admiring fellow-workers called him a "tight little bit of a man," because of his excellence in a fist fight at a glass factory in his native town of Sandwich on Cape Cod.

MISS NORMAND IS DYING

New York, Jan. 20—Mabel Normand, former star of the screen, is fighting a losing battle with death.

Her sister, Miss Gladys Mercedes Normand, is speeding to Montrose, Cal., on a special train to arrive at her bedside before she dies.

Miss Gladys Normand left her Staten Island home Thursday on receipt of an urgent telegram from the former film star's physician, saying that death was only a matter of hours. She expected to arrive at Montrose today.

Mabel Normand was stricken with tuberculosis several months ago, and has grown steadily worse, until she now weighs only 58 pounds, her family says.

Her father, Claude Normand, is so severely ill in the family home at St. Mark's pl, St. George, Staten Island, that he cannot be told of his daughter's condition.

With the death of the "Dare-Devil Girl" will close one of the most colorful careers of the movies.

Mabel Normand rose from extra girl to star in two years. She created some of the historic roles of early screen days. And she amassed a fortune estimated now to be about $2,500,000.

New Hired Man Robs House and Vanishes

Charlton, Jan. 20 (AP)—With a revolver in his hand, Joseph Green, 35, who was hired Saturday to work on the farm of William H. Slocomb, walked from his bedroom into the kitchen this morning, after Slocomb had left the house, ordered Mrs. Slocomb to go into her bedroom and stay there, and then ransacked the house and departed with $81 in cash.

After the man had left the house, Mrs. Slocomb called Officer Bennett, who notified police in all nearby Worcester county towns.

FLOOD PERIL ENDS IN SOUTH

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 20 (AP)—Levels of interior streams in the lower Mississippi Valley were almost stationary today.

A gradual recession was in prospect after the breaking of levees along the upper St. Francis river in Dunklin County, Missouri, to the south in Greene County, Arkansas, and along Big Lake, just below the Missouri border.

Water coming through the latest crevasses in the embankments—in Dunklin County—was winding toward a junction with the water spreading out from the Big Lake gap. This overflow was expected to move into Poinsett County and find its way back into the St. Francis near the town of Marked Tree.

Reports indicated the spread of the water has been gradual. Residents of the inundated area were safe on surrounding ridges with their livestock and much of their household goods.

LACKS RIGHT TO BAN AIR TALK

Cleveland, Jan. 20 (AP)—Thad H. Brown, general counsel of the Federal Radio Commission before leaving here for Washington today, said the commission has no means to curb W. K. Henderson of Station KWKH, Shreveport, La., against whose broadcasting complaints have been made.

"Radio jurisprudence," said Brown, "is still in its infancy, and as yet there is no law to prevent Henderson from saying whatever he happens to choose. He has informed the commission, via radio, that if his radio station is ever put out of business, he will open a new one in Mexico and operate on every frequency imaginable."

Annapolis Stars to Join Marines

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20 (AP)—The best fighters among embryo admirals propose to be among those boys who are the first to fight and get the situation in hand.

Hubert Williams, once intercollegiate lightweight champion; Paul Moret, captain of the naval academy boxing team; Whitey Lloyd and Harold Buser, football backs, intend to join the marines upon graduation.

Military Law Applied to Antis in Army

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—The War Department disclosed today that army regulations have been amended to make any violation of the national prohibition laws a military offense.

Secretary Hurley said today that although army regulations since 1917 had prohibited the possession of liquor on government reservations, they made no specific reference to the national prohibition law passed in 1918.

The new army regulation charges the commanding officer of each military station with enforcement of the prohibition laws within his jurisdiction. It also extends army discipline, Mr. Hurley said, to any officer convicted by civil authorities of prohibition law violations off government reservations.

The new regulation was issued, Hurley said, as the army's contribution to the administration effort for stricter enforcement of prohibition. Its scope extends to army posts in the Philippines and wherever they may be outside the continental United States, even though there be no prohibition in that country. The older army regulation made all these posts dry.

TAKEN FOR RIDE; SHOT 4 TIMES

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Max Prince, a Coney Island restaurant owner, was shot four times in a closed car at Bath beach, Brooklyn, today and thrown from the car into the road.

He was taken to Coney Island hospital by police. His condition was reported serious.

Police said Prince had been taken for a ride by four racketeers with whom he had played cards in his restaurant. Police did not know whether the shooting was the result of the card game.

Dominick Germano, who lives in the house in front of which the wounded man was thrown, said he heard four shots and, on looking out of his window, saw the door of the car open and Prince's body fly out. Germano summoned police.

GRUDGE WARRANT USED IN RAID

MANY INNOCENT TREATED LIKE SUE BROWN

Identity of "Henry Miller" Who Signed Affidavit Is Mystery

By WINIFRED BLACK
Universal Service

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 20—So "Henry Miller" has disappeared. "Henry Miller," the ghost witness.

"Henry Miller," the good, reliable well-known citizen who swore away little Sue Brown's liberty.

"Henry Miller," the mysterious individual whose testimony scrawled on a piece of dirty paper put an inoffensive, refined, good little woman in jeopardy of her life and made her fight the agonizing battle of motherhood alone in a filthy cell, in a foul prison which ought to be torn down, stone by stone, and wiped out of existence like the torture house that it is.

Who is "Henry Miller" really?

Is there any such man at all?

None of the neighbors has ever seen him and in all the broad county of Monterey nobody can even suspect who he is, except Judge Baugh, who signed the warrant for Sue Brown's arrest and signed it on the strength of the affidavit of the honest, courageous, high-minded "Henry Miller."

Then D. M. Laughery, the prohibition agent, left all Monterey county celebrating New Year's Eve with wine, with whisky, with gin, with brandy—and some of them perhaps with dope—and went night miles down a lonesome road and broke into honest Art Brown's home like a thief in the night and frightened poor little Sue Brown almost to death.

Where is this interesting "Henry Miller," Judge Baugh?

We'd like to see him—we'd like to know what he looks like and where he lives and what he does for a living.

POISONS THE WELL

The whole state of California would like to have a look at the gentleman.

If he signed that affidavit in honest good faith, why is he so shy all of a sudden?

It isn't the first time "Henry Miller" has signed an affidavit against a neighbor in Monterey county, and, strangely enough, he never appears at the trial.

He just poisons the wells of neighborly kindness and friendship and disappears.

Who helps him to make his "getaway?"

It can't be D. M. Laughery, that good and chivalarous man, who waits until he sees the husband drive out of the yard and then breaks down the door and tells the wife alone in a lonely farm house that she will have to pay a $300 fine or go to jail.

No, no—never D. M. Laughery. Why there's nothing cowardly about him; he's six feet three in his stocking feet, and broad shouldered and husky enough to be a prize fighter—why he isn't afraid of any frightened little woman in the world—why should he help the witness who was helping him to keep his job, to escape—when all the state is crying out for a sight of said witness.

Not Judge Baugh, the astute politician, the clever little man who stands "in" with the powers that be in Monterey county.

You know who this mysterious "Henry Miller" is Judge Baugh—why not issue a writ of habeas corpus and bring him into court?

Half the county and a whole lot of people outside the county would crowd Colton Hall and pack the stately grounds of that stately old citadel till it will look like the end of the world and Gabriel blowing his trumpet.

NAME ONLY BLIND

It's a simple thing to get a sworn statement against a neighbor down in Monterey County. An ex-official explained it all to me the other day while the air was still full of the horror of the Sue Brown story.

"This is the way they work it," said the ex-official.

"They want to go after somebody and they pick up some 'friend' or 'neighbor' with a spite or a little envy in his heart, and they get him to swear out the warrant, maybe it's the man who spent the evening at his neighbor's house the night before. Maybe he waved a friendly goodbye to that very neighbor as he went to meet the 'undercover man' and sign his warrant for him.

"Does he sign his own name, this obliging kindly fellow who's looking for a few dollars on the side, no matter how he gets it?

"He does not—not so you can read it.

"He scrawls a signature that he couldn't identify himself if his life depended on it—something like "Miller, or Muller or Thriller or something—"

If the agent finds the stuff he is looking for in the house the kind neighbor points out to him—the affidavit is torn up and that's that.

"If it turns out to be a false alarm, the affidavit disappears mysteriously—and there you are.

"That's one reason I got out of the game. I couldn't stand brothers informing against brothers and fathers signing some queer illegible signatures to a complaint against their own sons.

"Who had a grudge against young Brown or against his wife? Did Brown work so hard night and day that he made some lazy neighbor ashamed of himself? Did little Sue Brown turn her head the other way when some country 'sheik' looked in her direction——?

"Keep your eye on the neighbors—you'll find 'Henry Miller' but he won't be signing that name to any more checks."

On the day that I went to see Prohibition Officer Laughery to ask him how in the world he came to pick out Art Brown's neat little farmhouse for his "raid," he tried to make me believe all kinds of things about little Sue Brown, who is known as one of the most devoted little mothers and wives in Monterey County.

So I am quite ready to believe a good deal I hear about prohibition officers and the friends they have to swear out warrants for them.

MATRON ABSENT

Now Judge Baugh, while we are waiting for you to produce Mr. Henry Miller, let's ask the sheriff of Monterey County a few questions.

How about that street of evil associations—any stranger can find it right in Salinas—booze, dope, unfortunate women—it doesn't take any mysterious "Henry Miller" to get on the trail of this red light district.

But more interesting than that, there are some things every good Californian would like to know about the county jail at Salinas.

There isn't supposed to be a jail of any size in the United States today without a matron and that matron slept in the jail at night for the express purpose of looking out for women prisoners.

Monterey County pays a matron a fairly god salary—why doesn't she stay in the jail where she belongs and look after her prisoners as she is paid to do?

There are not many women prisoners taken to the Salinas jail. Suppose—well, then, Mr. Sheriff let your matron live comfortable at home but see to it that she gets to the jail within 15 minutes after any woman prisoner gets there. If you had done that in this particular case one innocent little life might have been saved.

And in the second place, how is it that a decent gentlemanly, boy in throws into the bull pen and left there with the outcasts of the earth for company—just because he happened to fall unconscious in the streets of Salinas.

I saw such a boy myself with my own eyes. Huddled poor lad on a wooden bench with the riff-raff of the world around him, when he should have been in the hospital.

The riff-raff, by the way, had more heart and more decency than the Monterey County authorities—for they pointed the boy out to me and said he did not belong there.

Dry Law Costs Baby's Life

Mrs. Sue Brown of Monterey, Calif., who gave birth to a still-born child one week after she had been sent to jail. Mrs. Brown charges she was "railroaded." She is shown in the picture holding Arthur, 14 months old, while Katherine, four, stands beside her. (International Newsreel photo.)

A Second Telephone
— on your present line

Here's real home convenience—a second telephone instrument, on an extension of your main line, right beside your bed. You can then use either the main telephone or the extension telephone—the one that's nearest.

Think of the steps you'll save whenever the telephone bell rings. And the quiet and seclusion you'll have telephoning from this bedside extension.

If you're living in an apartment this arrangement will eliminate an unsightly long cord. And you'll always know where the telephone is. If you're living in a single house, you'll never again have to rush way down stairs to answer the main telephone. The extension telephone will do just as well.

The monthly charge for this added home convenience ranges from 75c to $1.00, depending upon the class of service you have.

Your wife, mother, or sister will appreciate having a convenient extension telephone. It saves so much time and so many steps when the telephone bell rings.

For full information call the "Business Office" and ask for your service representative. Any operator will connect you with the Business Office quickly, without charge.

WORKERS ASSN. AIDED GROWTH OF FILENE'S

That granting to employes a share in the management has been an important factor in the growth of one of the largest retail stores in the country, is the conclusion drawn by investigators for the Russell Sage Foundation, in New York, from an extended study of William Filene's Sons' Company in Boston, the results of which are made public today.

This is the fourth in the Foundation's series of studies of sharing management with the workers, but the first in the retail field. Previous studies have dealt with industries as coal, steel and textiles.

The Filene store was selected for study because of its position as one of the first large organizations in the country to adopt liberal personnel policies.

In the Filene Co-operative Association, according to the investigators for the Foundation, it formulated one of the earliest, if not actually the original plan of employe participation in management to be set up in the United States.

Said Edward A. Filene of the initiation of this plan: "We agreed to do nothing for our people, but to help them with all our minds and strength to do everything for themselves."

The results of the Filene experiment are examined in this report on the basis of a six-year study by Mary LaDame, under the direction of Mary van Kleeck, director of the Department of Industrial Studies of the Foundation.

"The unusual feature of the Filene experiment in employe participation is the Filene Co-operative Association, of which every employe is a member and which was designed 'to give its members a voice in their government, to increase their efficiency and add to their social opportunities, to create and sustain a just and equitable relation between employer and employe.' The management believed that this policy would be beneficial to the business and to customers.

"In actual practice, the association is allowed to initiate or revise store rules, to determine store hours and regulate vacations, and to govern discharges, transfer of employes or any other condition of employment that might be in dispute. A unique feature is that governing discharge.

the President interested in both subjects he had discussed.

Sirovitch told press correspondents that England, France and Germany used non-poisonous denaturing materials and that they had been just as effective in keeping people from drinking denatured alcohol as the poisonous materials now being used in this country.

At the same time the, House expenditures committee prepared to open hearings Wednesday on the proposals to transfer the prohibition bureau from the Treasury to the Justice Department, announcing that Secretary Mellon would be the first called for testimony.

The Senate judiciary committee appointed sub-committees to consider various phases of the Hoover program for reorganization of dry law enforcement. The committee took no action on the Blaine resolution proposing outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

It is on this measure that the Senate may some time this session take the first out and out vote on the wet and dry question since the amendment was adopted.

Sen. Harris (D), Georgia, a dry, went before the committee to urge his bill carrying out the recommendation of the law enforcement commission to give U. S. commissioners power to try minor prohibition cases.

The committee asked Atty.-Gen. Mitchell to submit a report on its proposition, against which some opposition has appeared on the ground that it might be contrary to the constitutional guarantee of trial by jury.

Sen. King (D), Utah, brought up his bill for transfer of the prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice department—another recommendation of the law enforcement commission. A subcommittee including Senators King, Hebert and Waterman, Republican, Colorado, was named to consider it.

Tomorrow the Senate judiciary committee will hold a session to decide upon the procedure for consideration of all of the Hoover recommendations.

ROADS IN N. E. ARE HELPING INDUSTRY

Portland, Me., Jan. 20 (AP)—Improved industrial conditions in New England have kept pace with improved railroad conditions, Col. Arthur N. Payne, manager of the industrial and agricultural bureau of the Boston & Maine railroad, said in an address here today before the Civitan club.

Stating that railroads of the country have provided a 1930 budget of $1,050,000,000 for improvements, Col. Payne declared this improved rail service was of the utmost importance to business.

"Transportation is a part of industry," he continued. "This is especially true here in New England. Out here in the northeast corner of the United States with so much of our raw material coming in from other sections and a great part of our finished product finding markets in other sections of the country, the very best possible rail service is an absolute necessity.

PESSIMISM GONE

"Four years ago there was prevalent throughout this section a pronounced pessimism. There was constant talk about decadence, and we were constantly being reminded of the cotton textile manufacture moving South and the probable loss of our shoe manufacturing plants to the Middle West.

"Since that time there has been a great change brought about in what we might term the 'New England consciousness.' We admit quite frankly there has been a realignment in the cotton textile industry. The cheaper grades of cotton cloth are being manufactured in the South to a large extent, but in the finer grade New England has lost nothing. On the contrary, several well-managed concerns have shown increases.

SHOE BUSINESS BETTER.

"So far from losing the shoe business, New England is on a higher level than it has been within the last six years, and in this connection do not forget that both cotton goods and shoes combined represent a total of less than 15 per cent of New England manufactures."

He stated that with the completion of the 1930 budget the Boston & Maine will have spent $100,000,000 in the last seven years in re-construction, improvement and betterments which include the new rolling stock, heavier motive power, heavier rails, re-building of bridges and installation of electric signal systems to speed up both freight and passenger service in all branches.

Edison Spurns Golf; Wears Silk 'Nighties'

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison wears silk night shirts, Mrs. Edison so reveals in the American Magazine.

He likes to feel silk next to his skin. Annually Mrs. Edison makes him a box of handkerchiefs from the softest India silk. They are a yard square.

"I am always finding something of the boy in him," says Mrs. Edison. "He simply could not leave the house without giving me an affectionate hug and kiss. It is the custom of years for me to go to the door with him for a few parting words.

He regrets the talkies and would like to see Mary Pickford or Clara Bow in an old silent film. He doesn't like bridge, dancing or golf. He considers golf was invented for men who eat too much.

He writes practically no letters. Harvey Firestone writes to him, but he does not write to Firestone.

He never remembers holidays or anniversaries, not even Christmas, his own birthday or his wedding anniversary. He shaves himself with an old-fashioned straight-blade razor.

At home the inventor decrees that his arm-chair shall be kept sacred. Nobody else has ever sat in it. He allows no one to disturb his copy of the morning paper.

His favorite author is Victor Hugo. His favorite books are "Les Miserables" and "Toilers of the Sea." "Evangeline" and "Enoch Arden" are his favorite poems.

'Passing Buck' Called Great U. S. Pastime

New York, Jan. 20 (INS)—Declaring that the "great American pastime" appears to be "passing the buck or dodging responsibility," Governor Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire, today had roundly scored the American citizen's belief that the United States can go on blindly to a great destiny.

America has a great destiny only if it is deliberately sought and attained by her individual citizens, Governor Tobey said in an address at the Washington Square Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Governor held no brief for critics inclined to "rap" or cynics who "sneer" at the present age.

"The good old days were good, but they are gone and the modern days are better," he said. "This is the heroic age and ours is the opportunity to build."

FEDERATION CALLS FOR BIG CLUB YEAR

A comprehensive program lies before the two and a half million clubwomen of America, a program rich in material and unlimited in scope.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs through its president, Mrs. John F. Sippel, call on the greatest body of organized womanhood in the land for sincerity of purpose and nobility of thought and action.

It asks of the women that they stress religion and live religion in the home.

Women are urged to take on the civic responsibilities and aid the foreign born in the country to a greater realization of the standards and ideals of America.

With the beginning of the new year, Mrs. Sippel asks above and beyond all of these hopes and desires for the accomplishment of material things.

"As the New Year says 'Good Morning,' we are thinking, not of what it is bringing, but of how we can help it when it leaves us to take with it a record of work well done," Mrs. Sippel begins her message.

"I know we will do our part to give it a real store of good things. Through our Department of American Home we will stress and live religion in the home. In American Citizenship we women will take on our civic responsibilities and aid the foreign born in our midst. Through our department of legislation we will work for the enactment of only those laws which are necessary.

"Through our department of fine arts we shall work toward a greater appreciation of American painting, sculpture and literature and that we may become a signing nation.

"Our educational program will be based upon the idea of fitting the school to the child and not the child to the school. Our press and publicity department will give to the newspapers the news of today, not that of last week.

"Through our public welfare department we hope to build into the community life better libraries, recreational centers and necessary sanitation that there may be an enrichment, and betterment of each locality.

"In international relations may there be peaceful, living with those in the home, in the neighborhood, in the state and in the nation to the end that we may be ready for the great international understanding which is drawing nearer through the desires of people throughout the world.

"And before we say 'good night' in 1930 may we have 'caught the vision' and 'grown with grace.'"

As usual, the proceeds are to be devoted to the care and upkeep of the children at the Farm Home, which this organization supports.

SWAMPSCOTT WOMAN'S CLUB

A musical revue presented by the club's choral class furnished the entertainment for the meeting held today and to which the club's waiting list was especially invited.

At the business session which preceded, Mrs. Joseph H. Gough, president, was in the chair. Mrs. Alice S. Fuller and Mrs. Rachel G. Cullen were hostesses for the afternoon.

R. I. DRY HEAD ACCUSED OF FALSIFYING

Providence, Jan. 20—Intimating that R. P. Hutton, superintendent of the Rhode Island Anti-Saloon League, had deliberately prevaricated in a speech at Detroit, Michael F. McLaughlin, newly-elected police commissioner of Providence, declared today that Providence is wet.

In his Detroit address, Hutton told the Anti-Saloon League members that Providence is "one of the dryest big cities in the country."

On the contrary, Commissioner McLaughlin asserted, the city is "as wet as any city of its size in the country." He said in a statement:

"Having read the report Mr. Hutton made to the convention of the Anti-Saloon League in Detroit that Providence was the dryest big city in the nation, owing to a non-partisan police commission, etc., I am inclined to believe that he knew in his heart that that statement contained about as much truth as the statement he made regarding Superintendent O'Neil's affiliation with the Fr. Mathew Temperance Society, when Superintendent O'Neil denies in toto.

"Having just been elected to the police commission and knowing Mr. Hutton as I do, I wonder if perhaps he has become a convert to

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Demand for Vicks, Pioneer of "No Dosing" Method, Grows at Amazing Rate

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Best for Children

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, "drawing out" tightness and soreness; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Equally Good for Adults

Year after year the demand for Vicks has grown until it is now the family standby for colds in more than 60 countries. Used largely at first for children's colds, actual use in millions of homes has proved it equally effective for adults.

Now "26" Million!

To keep pace with this ever-growing demand, the famous Vick slogan—"17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "24 Million" a short time ago. This figure, too, has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

Chicago Rum Deaths Up 1400% in Decade

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP)—A decade of deaths from violent and unnatural causes was reviewed today by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Cook County coroner.

In the period from 1920 to 1929, there were 43,487 such fatalities, the coroner said, automobiles being the principal death agency. Deaths from this cause showed an increase of 100 per cent in the ten-year period.

Deaths from alcoholism increased from 20 in 1920 to more than 400 last year, he said.

"Bad alcohol is the one outstanding problem faced by this office today," Dr. Bundesen said. He pointed out that bad liquor was as apt to be found in gold coast neighborhoods as in the slums.

Homicides during the period were 4242, representing a gradual rise from 202 in 1920 to 429 last year.

The coroner pointed out that the total number of violent deaths in 1929 was 1400 under that of 1928.

Washington, Jan 20 (INS)—With the can-opener long established as one of the most important American kitchen utensils, the fame of canned goods bearing the legend "Made in U.S.A." is rapidly circling the globe.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF ONE of Boston's most worthy charities, the Travelers Aid Society, Miss Faith Stanwood of 480 Commonwealth ave., chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Miss Susan B. Sturgis of 26 Commonwealth ave., are planning to present Angna Enters, the noted mimic and dancer, at a special appearance in her "Episodes" and compositions in dance form in the Hotel Statler Ballroom on Monday afternoon, February 17. Proceeds from the benefit will be devoted to the work of the society in providing information, advice, guidance and protection to travelers who by reason of unfamiliarity with the city, inexperience, illness, infirmity or other disability are in need of assistance or adjustment to the community.

CAPACITY AUDIENCES which have marked the lectures on the modern trend in architecture and garden design, given under the auspices of the Cambridge School in the Women's Republican Club, will be repeated today as the third and last of the series, when Prof. Jean Jacques Haffner of Harvard will speak on "The Modern Trend in Decoration."

Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr., of Marlborough st., chairman of the Boston committee; Mrs. George Olmsted, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Bradley, Miss Anita Rathbun and Miss Muriel Childs will pour at tea.

From Boston the speakers, Prof. Haffner and Fletcher Steele, the landscape architect, will go to Washington and Chicago where they will repeat the lectures for the benefit of the school in the Italian Gardens of the Mayflower at the Capital and at the Fortnightly Club, respectively. In Washington, Miss Anne Butler, daughter of Justice Butler of the Supreme Court, is chairman of the election committee, and in Chicago, Princess Michael Cantacuzene is in charge. Plans are being made by Miss Rathbun to give the lectures in Philadelphia, Cleveland and other cities.

MISS ALBERTA M. HOUGHTON will receive the members of the Foreign Affairs School at tea at her home, 58 Garden st., Cambridge, Wednesday, January 22 22 from four to six o'clock. This will be the social event of the school, to which all members are invited. Not only is it delightful to be received by Miss Houghton, but it will be a pleasure to see the lovely, old house with its famous library, in which the foremost men and women of literature have been entertained. The school is being conducted under the auspices of the League of Women Voters, and is being held January 21, 22, and 23 at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge. The hostesses of Cambridge have been very gracious in expressing their interest in the school by entertaining both members and speakers. In addition to Miss Houghton's tea, Mrs. Edward Caldwell Moore of Cambridge will entertain Dr. C. C. Wu during his stay in that city for the purpose of addressing the Foreign Affairs School, Tuesday evening on the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

MRS. C. ALEXANDER NEWHALL was elected president of the Household Nursing Association at the annual meeting. Mrs. Moses Williams, Jr., and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus were re-elected vice-presidents, and H. Bradley Fenno was elected treasurer. The office of clerk was not definitely settled at the meeting. Mrs. J. R. Coolidge, who was instrumental in aiding the expansion of the school during its early days, gave a short resume of the founding and first work of the Household Nursing Association. Miss Katherine Shepard, present superintendent of the Training School, gave her annual report, which compared favorably with the last year's report. During the year 1929, 2682 visits were made by attendants at the school. Richards Bradley gave an interesting talk, in which he compared the work of the Household Nursing Association with that of the Cottage Nursing in England and suggested a financial plan used in the British system. At the close of the meeting the directors and their guests inspected exhibitions of the work of the school and were served tea with Mrs. Carl Dreyfus pouring.

PRESIDENT MARY E. WOOLEY of Mt. Holyoke College, Honorable Andrew J. Peters, Mrs. Glendower Evans, Courtney Crocker, Mrs. Hiram N. Lathrop, Richard W. Hale, Mrs. George W. On three Wednesday evenings beginning March 12th, Dr. Griggs will deal with Italian cities and their gift to civilization—devoting one evening each to Rome, Venice and Florence. Pastor Sees Whole World Seeking Peace

The Rev. Dr. John Smith Lowe preached on "The Issue at London" at the Church of the Redemption, saying:

"We may look to the London conference with some degree of hope because the pressure of public opinion is behind it.

"The hearts of the common people all over the earth are throbbing with a great desire to do away with war. The voice of the common people is becoming articulate. It was articulate in the visit of Ramsay MacDonald to America. It becomes articulate every time President Hoover speaks on the subject of peace.

"There is more world wide public opinion, more organization, more wealth and power behind the peace program than any other similar reform movement has enjoyed in the long history of the world."

ROLAND HAYES CHARMS HIS AUDIENCE

By MOSES SMITH

Roland Hayes gave his second concert of the season before a huge audience at Symphony Hall. These are "parlous" days in the concert hall: but if there is one name that can be depended upon to sell out Symphony Hall, it is Roland Hayes, mar of genius.

His hold over an audience remains as great as ever. A program which was anything but "popular" and a performance which was not vocally, of Hayes' best only emphasized this fact, for the audience was as enraptured as ever. Even a person disliking to use mystical language can find no other expression than that the tenor's soul goes out to his hearers. No matter what he is singing, Roland Hayes is the very epitome of spirituality on the stage.

The program consisted of five old songs—two in Italian and three in English — five unhackneyed Brahms lieder and five Negro Spirituals. The artistry of Hayes was what it has been since his first phenomenal appearance in Symphony Hall. There was the same intense concentration on the song in hand, the same singleness of purpose with composer, the same interpretative sympathy and even genius.

If Mr. Hayes had one of his off days, so far as his voice is concerned, it was no great matter. Even when he is at his best, students of song may question his methods of tone-production. Yet these same students are first to admit the spell under which the man himself and his art cast them.

We can think of only one other artist in the concert hall who approaches his music with quite the same type of spirituality as Hayes, and that man is Andres Segovia, Spanish master of the guitar, who was heard, by coincidence, in Jordan Hall the preceding matinee. At this point—and it is certainly an important point—the similarity ends. For Segovia is an unquestioned technical master, in superb control of the resources of his instrument. And instead of a crushing multitude he had a comparatively small audience in the smaller hall.

New Modes Allow Slender Figure Effects

YOU need not despair and say that the new clothes, beautiful as they are, are not for you. Nor grieve too much over a figure that is built slightly more substantially than the curved pencil silhouette of the mode today. There are frocks for you—frocks that are in harmony with your youthfulness, your sophistication, that will add height and slenderness to your figure. Of course, you can't go into a shop and choose anything that pleases your eye. You must please your individual figure, also, and that will necessitate discarding altogether certain features that your more slender and taller friends can wear.

For example, if your shoulders are inclined to be plump and your bust measures a little more than you wish it did, avoid a bertha collar which will only add width. A frilly jabot effect in the front of the frock may be quite becoming, however, provided it is not too full. The collar line in the first frock illustrates this point.

Then there is a question of belts. Because so many of the new dresses are belted you would, of course, like to wear one of them. And you can, if you adjust the belt to suit your own figure exactly. Sometimes these belts are only across the back of the dress as in the first frock, and sometimes only shirring or fullness on the sides indicates the waistline—all of which is a help in making the waist appear small.

MANY frocks this season have all sorts of intricate seams, peplums, frills and what not on their skirts. Such things may not be for you, if hips are wide, such things only emphasize the fact. Still, even without these appurtenances, your frocks can follow the new silhouette and still be becoming. Note the modified princess line of the third frock. The flared skirt is graceful, youthful. The bands placed diagonally in the middle of the gown tend to slenderize the waist. Even the V-neckline with its small jabot is planned to flatter.

THE second frock is an excellent model for one who is very tall, heavy, and whose hips are narrow. The peplum fits snugly, the belt may be adjusted either higher or lower as the individual requires, and the two-tiered skirt is feminine and will make a person who is too tall appear shorter.

Flares, as illustrated here, can be worn by almost anyone, provided they are restrained. They are most wearable, however, when they start about the middle of the skirt and flare gradually.

Peplums probably are not for you. Yokes, on skirts, often however, are very becoming, especially if they have an irregular line.

SKIRTS being longer is a great boon But even here, one should beware not to have a skirt cut off at a dowdy length. Generally speaking, hems should average fourteen inches from the floor but as in the case of belts this is really an individual question.

And lastly, color must be considered. Again fashion has been kind to the larger figure. The very smartest costume this season for daytime wear is black and white. And nothing is more slenderizing.

PLANS PARLOR CAMPAIGN FOR VOTES

A new type of political campaign, which will be known as a "parlor-window" campaign, is to be conducted, next fall, by Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton of Cambridge, ardent dry advocate, should she make the nomination to succeed U. S. Senator Frederick H. Gillett.

In resorting to the novel idea of soliciting votes which she has recently conceived, Mrs. Tilton would depart completely from the time-honored custom observed in the past by candidates for state offices, who toured the entire Commonwealth, making speeches in various towns and cities as their medium of winning votes.

"It is my plan," Mrs. Tilton said, "to enlist the aid of mothers in my campaign, if it becomes necessary for me to run. In this way, I would have a poster placed in as many parlor windows throughout the state as possible. On these posters, in addition to an appeal to voters to favor me at the polls, would be a strong warning against the evils of liquor."

Sees Catholic Church as Freedom's Fount

Joseph J. Donahue, speaking before the Common Cause in Franklin Union Hall on the subject, "Do We Owe Our Freedom to the Reformation?" rejected the notion entertained by certain groups that German and English influences were the background of the liberties Americans enjoy.

The speaker pointed out that, in regard to intellectual freedom, the Catholic church believes it has received the revelation of Christ, that the Pope is the guardian, protector and interpreter of this divine revelation. "It would not respect this truth and revelation if it allowed those within its communion to question its essentials. The church's position is the only logical one," he stated.

Club Women Invited to Complimentary Tea

HOW would you like to hold the next meeting of your favorite club in one of the most beautiful rooms in Boston and have tea served in these lovely surroundings without charge of any kind?

This is the invitation extended to women's clubs by the Salada Tea Co.

In their gorgeous new building at the corner of Stuart and Berkeley sts. they maintain a beautiful room, which is offered as a meeting place for women's clubs. The ladies meet here and are taken on a tour of inspection through the wonderful Salada building. Tea is then served and the regular club meeting follows.

Today, for instance, the Medvilleton Club is holding a meeting at the Salada club rooms, tea being served at 3:45. The meeting is in charge of Mrs. Carl V. Devitsam.

On Wednesday, Jan. 22, the Caprin Manning Mothers' Association will hold a bridge party in the club room, with Mrs. E. J. F. MacNeal in charge of arrangements.

On Thursday the Old North Chapter of the D. A. R. is holding their bridge there, with Mrs. Lisle in charge, and on Friday, 60 members of the Auxiliary of the Canadian Club will play bridge in the Salada club room, with arrangements in charge of Mrs. D. C. Fairbanks.

In you would like to make similar arrangements for your club, without charge or obligation of any kind, write Martha Lee for further information, or you may write to Mr. E. Bruce-Kingsmill of the Salada Tea Co.

Teacher Wonders About New Word "Oldster"

U. S. May Well Be Grateful to Paisley, Scotland

Editor Boston American:

In referring to the recent disaster in Paisley, Scotland, Thomas R. P. Gibb, national secretary of the Order of Scottish Clans, reminds us that there is a close link between Paisley and the United States, for in the days before the Revolution many of the early pioneers came from that old town in Scotland. Among them was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, who took a most active part in public affairs and in the convention which met to frame a constitution.

He said he had "become an American the moment he landed." In June, 1776, he was elected to the Continental Congress and when John Dickinson of Pennsylvania said the country was not ripe for independence, Witherspoon broke in upon the speaker exclaiming, "Not ripe, sir! In my judgment we are not only ripe but rotting. Almost every colony has dropped from its parent stem and your own province needs no more sunshine to mature it."

One of Witherspoon's sons was killed at the battle of Germantown.

Gibb said that as soon as the news was received of the terrible loss of life in the fire in the Glen Cinema in Paisley the Order of Scottish Clans cabled $500 to the provost for relief purposes and one of the national officers added his personal contribution of $100.

Sauce for the Goose Should Be Sauce for the Gander

Editor Boston American:

After 10 years of a condition miscalled Prohibition is a fitting time to ask ourselves "What Is Prohibition," and treat it frankly. On its face Prohibition would signify the prohibiting of alcoholic drinks, but when we regard the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act we find that we have only prohibited the manufacture, sale, and transportation of liquor.

To start with, alcohol was legal if purchased before Prohibition went into effect, in any quantity. This may have meant Prohibition to the poor, but it certainly did not to those of better financial standing. Those able to buy in quantity before the advent of the law could continue legally to drink, but the working man could not. What a start! What do you suppose was the psychological reaction of the poor man to this law?

This law was incorporated into the Constitution of the United States that it might be a federal law with uniformity in all the States in the Union. How does it work out? If we will observe closely we will find today a condition of State option, which the law was designed to prevent.

We find varying conditions in the different States in accordance with the public sentiment within those states.

In New Hampshire it is illegal to possess cider after a certain date unless you are a vinegar manufacturer.

In Massachusetts a lawyer in court proclaims that he has liquor in his cellar purchased since prohibition and defies anyone to touch it!

The California Supreme Court has ruled that liquor thus procured is legal and cannot be touched unless there is proof of sale.

In Boston New Year's eve a bottle of liquor was permissible on the table in hotels in the face of the local state and federal officials, providing the table was occupied and that the liquor was not purchased there.

In Southern New Hampshire an odor of liquor on the breath while driving an automobile is treated as in Massachusetts, while in Northern New Hampshire a man isn't taken from behind the wheel unless he is drunk.

In one of our Southern States recently a judge ruled that a jury was within its rights in "considering the evidence" which consisted in consuming it—and it was liquor.

In another State a judge warns federal men because they search a private dwelling without a warrant—illegally.

Vermont had a "squealer" law in effect some time before it was judged unconstitutional. In Massachusetts it is legal to possess a certain number of gallons of beer or wine or home brew if there is no evidence of sale.

New York has its speakeasies by the score, according to the New York police. What are the psychological reactions to all this? Is this Prohibition? I would rather call it a limited state option. It is a condition we may safely say is far beyond the powers or scope of our Federal government to combat or correct.

Trickery Used to Corral Amateur Hockey Players

O. H. A. FACES CENSURE FOR PRACTICES

By BILL GRIMES

As the Toronto district is recognized as the most fertile field for professional hockey talent, scouts are making that section of the Dominion their headquarters, with the results that there are few amateur players, of even average ability, who are not to some extent obligated to the Maple Leafs, Rangers or Maroons.

Conditions have reached such a stage in and around Toronto that in the near future, some reformers are going to band together and drop a bombshell into the ranks of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Bill Grimes

For years, the Ontario Hockey Association has been throwing stones at other amateur — so-called — organizations, despite the fact that it has been living in a glass house for more than a decade.

About 10 years ago, the O. H. A. and the U. S. H. A. locked horns and the Canadian body refused to sanction trips to the "States" for any clubs, other than college teams over which it had little or no jurisdiction.

Frank Sullivan, sponsor for the old Westminsters, applied the first wedge in the break when he brought Ag Smith, Norm Shay, Herb Rheaume and Eddie Powers from Canada, but relations were not severed until after Roy Schooley of Pittsburgh failed to keep his promise regarding a one-year residence rule, agreed upon by the United States and Canadian hockey organizations.

O. H. A. MAKES THREAT

The O. H. A. not only refused to allow any teams to play amateur clubs here, but also threatened to professionalize any player who joined a team in the "States." Yet, everyone knew that the O. H. A. clubs could not establish any stronger claim to amateurism than our local outfits.

Before there were any minor professional leagues, trickery was resorted to in order to get players into the ranks of the out and out money chasers. In order to force prospects to jump to the pro ranks National Hockey Association promoters would advance money for an amateur to equip himself with suitable duds and skates and then if the player failed to listen to reason, the O. H. A. was informed that he had accepted money from a professional club. Such tactics were necessary because at that time there was more money for the stars in the amateur game.

Bill Carson of the Bruins was one of the most sought after players in the amateur ranks after he wound up his career with varsity and but for a slip from a friend, after he had accepted $100 from the St. Pats of Toronto, Dr. Bill would have been in the N. H. L. a couple of years earlier.

Carson was receiving $3500 for playing amateur hockey and this fact was well known to the O. H. A., but as Carson's employers had no desire to turn him up, the St. Pats resorted to the skate and boot trick to force the issue. Advised of the scheme, Carson returned the money and saved his hide.

There are more hockey games played in and around Toronto than in any section of Canada. Therefore the scouts head for the Queen City in quest of talent.

The Maple Leafs have regularly employed scouts and hundreds of self-appointed ivory hunters who race from one rink to another trying to pick up promising material. Players who pass muster with the scouts are tied up by the advancing of $50 or $100, which establishes a lien on their future services.

Bucking the army of Maple Leaf scouts is Mike Rodden, the former N. H. L. referee, who talked Col. John S. Hammond of the Rangers into appointing him a scout for the New York club. Mike is confining all of his refereeing to the amateur games and, therefore, is at all times in close touch with the younger talent.

Between the Maple Leaf representatives and Mike Rodden, Toronto is well combed for hockey players. Hundreds of amateurs, even juniors in the Toronto section of Ontario, are affiliated with National Hockey League clubs to such an extent that they cannot be approached by other promoters.

FLATLEY SAYS

PHIL SCOTT has discovered a new punch, which is easy to do in jolly old England, where they have all sorts of ingredients—but Sharkey, total abstainer, doubtless will refuse to try it in the Battle of the Palms—if Phil can spring anything new on Miami, it will be a surprise.

Russ Scarritt knocked in more runs than any other Red Sox player, thereby ending a record for Phil Todt that stretched over four years—Bill McKechnie, new Brave manager, was a player with the team the year before it won the world title—if he can repeat that performance, it will be all right by us—Jess Willard was an inch taller than Carnera, but his fists weren't as big—but the overgrown Italian will fall just as hard—Big Boy Peterson has been picked as Primo's first opponent, and we mean picked—the Bruins have lost two out of four, which almost brings them back into the race.

PRESENTING Rockne with an automobile is like handing John Rockefeller a barrel of oil. The shrewd Knute knocks off a hundred grand ($100,000) per, at the lowest estimate.

AL MARSTERS will coach B. U., showing that he doesn't care what he tackles—he will go to Harvard law on the side, which will net him more in the long runs—and long runs always were Al's specialty—Landis says that ball players cannot fight, which isn't any news—Ed Martin writes in to submit that Art Shires probably caused the parrot fever epidemic—somehow you can't keep The Great out of the picture—Campolo will be the alternate for the Miami fight, which will get him a free trip anyhow—Jack Dempsey has dropped $40,000 promoting in Chicago, so he may have to fight again—not a Bruin gets placed on expert All-America hockey team; showing what those "all" things amount to—the stormy spell has filled all the reservoirs, just as it did the speculators' cups of woe—Judge Fuchs hopes his band concerts will jazz up the Tribe—one might make a few mean remarks about minors.

THE boxers do not give a hoot
For verdict; skill or blow.
They do their fighting nowadays
To get some easy dough.

EDDIE MACK grabbed 65 customers for his Miami special, as soon as he announced it; all new one, too—the fight may not attract, but the moonlight and palms and warmth certainly do—the recent northern weather is a perfect ballyhoo for the large bout—Jack Sharkey will make all his expenses, and they're heavy, by appearing in exhibitions at Tampa and St. Petersburg—Premier Mussolini is considering importing an American expert to organize school sports.

John McGraw is beating the races down at Havana—Jim Maloney will reach the half million class in earnings, if he doesn't get clipped on the chin between now and June.

THE saddest line that greets the eye:
The horse was best, but didn't try.

IF you're in, you know that all the chisellers envy the amateur bout promoters—that Heinie Wagner is likely to die, if asked to make speeches—that Aleck McLean is a Scotchman, but doesn't show it—that Harold Cutbill is staging a whale of a comeback—that manager Bill Carrigan broke their tonsils trying to persuade Leo Lermond to stick around this winter.

Shires to Appear in Ring Tonight

Chicago, Jan. 20 (INS)—Lost to his boxing art forever by request of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner, Charles Arthur Shires was today on his way to Cleveland, where he will appear in the ring tonight, but not as a fighter.

"Whatsaman" boarded a train here last night for Ohio with the 'advice" of Commissioner Landis still revolving in his head.

The White Sox first baseman has donated his box office magnetism to the benefit show being held for the family of Ray Campbell, ring critic who died recently.

EAGLE RELAY TEAM WILL RACE N. H. U.

BOSTON COLLEGE'S one-mile relay team will attempt to stage a comeback at the William C. Prout Memorial games in the Garden next Saturday night.

The Eagles will race New Hampshire in their first home showing of the 1930 season. Unless the Durham tracksmen are better than usual the B. C. quartet should score its first victory.

Jack Ryder saw his team go down to defeat before New York University and Holy Cross in the Brooklyn College games on Saturday night and wasn't too pleased.

He may make a few changes when his trackmen report today. The Eagles were facing a heavy assignment, for Phil Edwards was running anchor for N. Y. U. while Bernie McCafferty finished up for Holy Cross.

And from the looks of things, Boston College is not going to top Holy Cross in any of their relay meetings this winter, which will make the third straight season that the Crusaders have held sway over the Maroon and Gold in baton-toting.

McCABE TO RUN

Guarino Pasquantonio, Jack O'Brien, Bob Sullivan and Capt. Bill Mulcahy ran on the team that finished third. Joe McCabe is likely to take O'Brien's place on Saturday night, with O'Brien galloping with the two-mile outfit.

One reason for the poor showing of the Eagles may be traced to the fact that another custom of some years standing was broken by B. C. authorities.

The Boston College relay team didn't leave on Friday night as was scheduled and has been done in the past. Instead they left for Gotham on the 10 o'clock train Saturday morning.

Up until this year Boston College relay teams, running in New York, would leave Friday night and be assured of a rest before the time for the meet.

RYDER HAS HIGH HOPES

Boston College had quite a task in keeping up with New York University and Holy Cross as it was without the added burden of a long and tiresome train ride on a day-coach. Nothing better than last place could be looked for.

This is one of the reasons why Coach Jack Ryder expects his outfit to do better in the K. of C. games.

The Maroon and Gold two-mile relay, which will race in the Garden, will be selected early this week. Tom Meagher, Tom Daley, Brendon Moynahan, Jernie Trumm and Jack O'Brien are the leading contestants.

This team may meet with better success than the one-mile outfit. Tom Daley showed that he was headed on a good year by his showing in the Y. M. C. A. meet. Tom Meagher is in great condition and he's some runner. Moynahan will be running his first varsity race but has the stuff to make a sensational debut.

The freshman relay, another K. of C. entry, is due to be picked within a few days. Leo McCauley, Frank Lang, Don Fleet, Paul Daley and John King are battling for the berths.

Dixon Big Cog in Pere Quintet

One of the main reasons why the Pere Marquettes are having such a successful season on the basketball court is John Dixon, Boston College captain-elect of football from Norwood.

Dixon has been playing a whirlwind game at center for the South Boston aggregation. The Peres lost their first game in 11 starts to the Philadelphia Colored Giants on Saturday, and Dixon was high-scorer with nine points.

On Thursday night the Peres clash with their bitter rivals, the Filtrus, from East Boston, in a benefit show for James Troy, killed while on duty for the police force. Dixon is expected to lead the South Boston gang to victory in this charity contest.

Hub Man Second in Sled Dog Derby

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP) Leonhard Sappala, Alaskan driver, today won the first leg of the Lake Placid Club sled dog derby. He put his team over the finish line of a 42-mile course in 57 minutes 4 seconds, with all the dogs still in harness.

Six teams finished today's event, two having dropped out. The same course will be run tomorrow and the driver having the lowest time for the two days will be the derby winner. Seppala won last year's race.

Walter Channing of Boston finished second today in 58 minutes 4 seconds.

RED SOX HEADS TALK THINGS OVER

Bruins Win Close Game From Detroit

Detroit, Jan. 20—The world's champion Bruins nosed out Detroit by 5 to 4 in a hard fought hockey game.

A hectic second period, which saw seven scores, five in the first five minutes of play, featured the contest.

Clapper, second string right wing, scored twice for the Bruins, driving their third and fourth goals into the net. Carson, Oliver and Weiland also scored for the Bruins. Only six penalties, two to Rockburn, were imposed.

NEW SOX BOSSES TELL PLANS

Charles "Heinie" Wagner, newly-appointed manager of the Red Sox, and Jack McCallister, new coach of the club, made public their plans for the coming season at a luncheon tendered Hub sports writers by President Bob Quinn at the Copley Plaza this noon.

Some half a hundred scribes were on hand to greet the new leaders of the Fenway flock and hear what they had to say about the team's prospects in the 1930 race.

Wagner, as is his wont, didn't have a great deal to say, but he promised to do his best and expressed confidence that the Sox would show improvement over last season. McCallister, a newcomer in Hub baseball circles, but a veteran who spent more than a decade with Cleveland, agreed with all his new boss said.

Before going to the hotel Wagner and McCallister held a long conference with Quinn at Fenway Park relative to players' contracts and the spring training trip.

It was announced after the session that plans for the preliminary work had been virtually completed.

Rangers Defeat Hawks by 4 to 1

New York, Jan. 20—The New York Rangers defeated the Chicago Blackhawks, 4 to 1. The decision reversed the one gained by Chicago on its home ice a week ago, and gave the Rangers 28 points to Chicago's 27.

The Rangers were in their best form for their second game in two nights. Ching Johnson, burly defense star, injected the surprise element into the game, breaking through the Chicago line to score half of the Ranger goals, one in the first period and one in the third.

American Trotter Beaten in Paris

Paris, Jan. 20—Sam Williams, famous American trotter, finished sixth in the Vincennes race, but led most of the way. When passed by Amazon, who won, and Uranie, Sam eased up. George S. Tipling of Cleveland, the American horse's owner, declared that Sam had not been ready to enter the race,

94 AMATEURS TO BATTLE IN STATE TITLE TOURNEY AT ARENA TONIGHT

MORE than eight hours of boxing will mark the annual renewal of the Massachusetts State boxing championships tonight at the Boston Arena, where a throng of 94 ambitious young knights of the resin-covered canvas will make serious bid to be crowned 1930 titleholders.

Because of the record breaking entry list, one of the greatest ever registered for any tournament in the Hub with the possible exception of the national champions, it has been found necessary to open the battle for titles as early as 5 p. m.

Just when the closing gun is fired is problematical, but the boxing committee of the New England Association of the A. A. U., which is conducting the event under the personal direction of Tom Kanaly of the B. A. A., hope to terminate the milling at 1 a. m.

From every section of the State, cities and towns never before represented in a Hub simon pure tournament, ambitious youngsters of the flying fists will invade the city for this important tourney.

With most of last year's champions missing from the firing line tonight, having turned pro or deserted the boxing ranks altogether, many newcomers are certain to punch their way to glory.

TWO FORMER CHAMPS IN

Only two 1929 champions will be on hand to defend their hard earned crowns in the tournament tonight.

Mike Troy, Worcester boy who beat Wally De Wolfe of Newton to win the welterweight crown in last year's tourney, is hopeful of retaining his crown, while Ring Larsen of Quincy, middleweight king, will also be present in hopes of thwarting the ambitions of his more youthful antagonists.

The new champions are certain to be crowned before one of the largest throngs that ever witnessed an amateur boxing tournament in the city. And the comfort of the fans is assured by the removal of the ice from the arena surface.

Weighing in ceremonies are scheduled for 3 p. m. today as no doubt many of the 94 entries will be left by the wayside by their failure to make the required pounds age but it is certain that there will be a record number of bouts for decision.

SULLIVAN POPULAR

One of the most promising amateur boxers ever developed in this section will go to the post in the 135-lb. class, when Eddie Sullivan makes his bid for the title.

Sullivan reached the finals last year only to drop a questionable decision. He has improved greatly since then and is one of the outstanding favorites in any of the championship classes.

Sullivan, however, must turn back such stars as Victor Lotti of Marlboro, Larry Corot of Milton, Al De Angelis of Revere and Johnny Conley of South Boston.

Although only two entries were received for the popular heavyweight class, it is expected that there will be some post entries today. However, Hub fans will get their first glimpse of Peter Ruskowski of Spencer, who is said to be a promising boy.

There is expected to be plenty of action in the light-heavyweight ranks with no less than six contenders for the crown. Paul Mo-

Bertazolo Meets Risko Tonight

Cleveland, O., Jan. 20—Riccardo Bertazolo, Italian heavyweight champion, will meet Johnny Risko tonight at the Public Auditorium.

Phil Buccoin, manager of Riccardo, looks forward to Bertazolo's scoring a victory over the Cleveland baker boy, thereby stepping a rung higher in the heavyweight division.

Doc Bagley, one of the foremost handlers in the country, will direct the big Italian. Jack Gagnon, who boxes Frankie Simms in the semi-final on the same card, is in good condition.

WANER LOSES APPENDIX

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20 (AP)—Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, had his appendix removed today and was reported in good condition after the operation. Aside from slowing him down during early spring training, the operation was not expected to interfere with Waner's work.

HERE'S HOW "PANTHER" JOE MALCEWICZ TRAINS FOR MAT BOUTS

"Panther" Joe Malcewicz, who clashes with "Scissors" Joe Stecher in a mat bout on Thursday for the right to meet Gus Sonnenberg for the title, is training hard for the ordeal. Joe is shown doing a little cutting up to strengthen his back and arm muscles.

Anyone who can take a dip in an icy pool these cold mornings has plenty of courage. Joe Malcewicz seems to enjoy his icy bath. "Not bad at all," says Joe, "when you get used to it." Joe is in the best shape of his career right now.

RICHEST IN HISTORY OF GAME

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 20—Nearly a hundred golfers from all parts of the United States teed off today in quest of $25,000 prize money here in the richest tournament in the history of golf.

The tourney will be held over the new Agua Caliente course, and the winner will be enriched to the extent of $10,000. Second money amounts to $5000, more than any purse offered in any winter tourney thus far.

Horton Smith, brilliant young pro, is one of the favorites. He will be opposed by top-notchers, among them Denny Shute, winner of the recent Los Angeles open. Walter Hagen, MacDonald Smith and Johnny Farrell are also entered.

The battle for honors should develop into a hard driving game for the most part. The course is 6653 yards long. The out nine, some 3383 yards with its 35, has only one par five hole, the 525 yards eighth, but the journey home is more treacherous, requiring 36 strokes to come in at standard figures.

Par for the course:

Out .....4 5 4 4 3 4 4 6 5—35
In .....4 3 5 4 4 3 4 5 4—36—71

Among others who are picked by their past performances to make a strong bid for the premier positions are Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional, and two times P. G. A. champion; Al Espinosa, veteran Chicagoan, and three former open champions, Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Gene Sarazen, New York, and Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla.

George Von Elm, a high ranking amateur, is listed to finish at the head of the simon pures and should terminate his play well up among the leaders of the field.

94 AMATEURS IN TITLE BOUTS

Namara of Haley's Gym is one of the favorites in this division.

There will be nine starters in Ring Larsen's 160-lb. class and the Quincy boy still carries the punch that he exhibited last year, he may be able to repeat. Lad of Granite City lad has had a long rest and may not be able to show his best. There are many hopefuls in this division.

Charlie Kelley, Newton and Chris Rosa, East Boston are the choices in the 147-lb. class, although some unknown may break through to register a surprise while all the smaller bouts are overflowing with hopeful youngsters, who are eagerly anticipating victory.

Without doubt the tournament should uncover some new stars for the aproaching fixtures of the winter season for scores of boys who never appeared here will be seen in action.

salaries paid by N. H. L. clubs, and the few who are available demand more money than the stars of the pro ranks received five years ago.

As the conditions in Toronto, and the fact that N. H. L. clubs are using an unlimited reserve list, are known to the minor leagues, there will be a battle waged during the annual meeting of smaller organizations this spring with the National Hockey League to straighten out matters to the complete satisfaction of the minor leagues.

A few of the stars have successfully avoided tieing themselves up, but they are equally as liable to expulsion from the amateur ranks as those who have directly or indirectly accepted advance money from N. H. L. clubs.

The free agents are connected with commercial houses and receive high salaries for their combination of duties, hockey and punching the clock.

The deplorable conditions in vogue in Toronto are working a great hardship on the minor leagues. The players have been listening to the scouts' tales of the enormous

Robins Tangle to Be Setiled Soon

New York, Jan. 20 (INS)—The directors of the Brooklyn Club of the National Baseball League will meet this week, probably Wednesday, to name a new manager, it was reported today. At the same time it was said Wilbert Robinson will be maintained at the helm for another year.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

THE Bruins arrived home today from Detroit, and will rest up after their tough Western trip for the Chicago Blackhawks. The Hawks have had the sign on the holders of the Stanley cup this season in Chicago, but the Bruins have an opportunity to even up the series by turning in a victory tomorrow night at the Garden.

Tiny Thompson has been mentioned as a heavy favorite for the Hart trophy, but the Bruin goalie is not eligible for such an award. The goalies are barred from competing for the Hart trophy. They are confined to competition for the Georges Vezina Cup, which was donated by Les Canadiens.

The New Haven Eagles will offer a stronger opposition than they have at any time this season now that they have acquired the services of Reice and Patterson of the New York Americans. The Eagles have been struggling along with three spares for a couple of weeks.

Critics who have seen Bill Cleary officiate stamp him as one of the most promising ever developed in this section.

The Springfield Indians will be a tough team to keep out of the Can-Am. playoffs, now that Sparky Vail and Leo Queenville have joined the Frank Carroll aggregation. The Indians have not been drawing as well as formerly this season but with Vail back, they hope to get the crowds out in old time numbers.

There is no excuse for the University Club being defeated 6 to 1 by any amateur team in the country. The Grads have an over supply of excellent talent but the team lacks generalship. It is impossible for a player to manage a hockey team.

Johnny Morris, the well known boxing instructor, broke into the hockey officiating game last week at the Arena. He handled the Tech-Northeastern game and did so well that he is now known as the "Cooper Smeaton of Nova Scotia."

The Yale team is traveling at such a sensational pace that few teams have been able to give them any opposition. But do not wager the family jewels on the Elis to beat Johnny Harvard.

The Tigers have not won a game in the Garden since November 30, but if they battle in every home game as they did against the Philadelphia Arrows they will not want for friends.

From now until the end of the season, the Tigers have a battle on their hands in order to get into the playoffs. They are back in fourth place and must begin to click without delay, for the Indians of Springfield are right on their heels.

The Providence Reds returned from Quebec this morning, where they shut out the Beavers in an exhibition game last Friday. Manager Sprague Cleghorn remained in Montreal to look over a couple of amateurs and will not reach Providence until tomorrow.

MAT STARS SET FOR BIG BOUT

Two of the outstanding wrestlers in the world, Joe Malcewicz, the Utica Panther, and Jos Stecher of Dodge, Neb., former heavyweight champion of the world, will clash Thursday night at the Arena in the feature finish match of Paul Bowser's all-star tournament.

Malcewicz and "Scissors" Stecher are two of the outstanding contenders for Sonnenberg's heavyweight title. The comeback of Stecher last year, after a long siege of illness that drove him out of the wrestling game, was one of the most amazing athletic feats of 1929.

He is snapping at Sonnenberg's heels now, and must beat Malcewicz if he is to remain in the hunt for the title.

By the same token, Malcewicz must win if he is to continue in the running. Panther Joe has always been a howling favorite in Boston.

Thousands of wrestling enthusiasts consider him the cleverest and most resourceful heavyweight in the world, and he will have the support of the crowd when he matches his reverse flying mare with Stecher's famous scissors.

Ed George, sensational young athlete from the University of Michigan, will try for his 16th consecutive professional victory in the semifinal match, when he meets the flashy Freddy Meyers of Chicago. The bout is scheduled to go one fall to a finish and will mark the most severe test in George's brilliant career.

Jaffee Retains Skating Title

New York, Jan. 20 (INS)—Irving Jaffee was still the possessor of the intercollegiate outdoor speed skating title as a result of his prowess at the Bear Mountain Sports Association events on Sunday. Jaffee, who is Olympic champion and holder of the outdoor one-mile record, scored a total of 90 points in the all-round meet.

Miss Elsie Muller retained her interstate women's championship, scoring 80 points.

MALDEN AND MEDFORD IN TRACK MEET

MALDEN and Medford, ancient rivals, clash in the feature track meet of the school sports week on Friday at the Huntington ave. Y.

The choice of the Y track was made some time ago, after a conference between Ed Pigeon, Medford coach and Henry Batchelder, Malden mentor.

Maldens home track in the balcony of the small gym of the high school. Some great schoolboy runners have been developed on that saucer, but the track really is a handicap to a visiting team.

Malden's home track is in the Armory, is good for running purposes, but no visiting team feels that it can do its best there. Hence the decision to stage the meet on a neutral track. Both Medford and Malden have been in action on the Y track this season, so the lads should be able to do their best in the meet.

Dud Miller of Medford is the hope of his team in the running events. He is fast over the 300 and 600 yard routes. In the Newton meet Miller won the 300, took second in the 600 and ran on the relay team.

Malden has one of the best 600 yarders of the schoolboys, Cooperstein. This boy has done well in recent races, and can cop a first for his team.

Little Eddie Timmins of Boston Latin is one of the best track and seasoned youngsters running in the junior division of the Boston schools. He is a veteran of several B. A. A. meet midget races, and in the Hub meets wears a Union uniform.

Eddie now runs in the junior hurdles and high jumps. He is very good in the jump, and should pick up a flock of points for his school this year.

George Fenton, Bob Bolton and Flashman, Malden high football luminaries, are expected for Andover. Any one of this trio has enough ability to make the grade with the Blue.

Medford high five travels to Brockton this afternoon. The fast Blue and White quintet has dropped but one game this year, to Chelsea. Brockton is strong, and Tony Lyons' boys will have a step to get a victory over the Shoe City team.

Kurken Jeremiah, brother of Eddie of Dartmouth, is in Somerville high, and is waiting for spring to get into action with the baseball team. The lad played with Charley Dickerman's football group last fall.

He is a capable hockey player, and only the lack of a regulation team at Somerville keeps Kurken from starring right through the winter. Somerville has some fine hockey material, and could put a strong sextet on the ice.

Connie Mack Off for South Today

Philadelphia, Jan. 20—Connie Mack, boss of the world champion Athletics, started today for the South.

"I'm going to take a little vacation before my players gather in Florida for spring training," Mack said. He was accompanied by his wife, Thomas S. Shibe, president of the club, and Mrs. Shibe. They are going to Mt. Plymouth, Fla.

The Athletics' pitching staff and catching corps, are due in Ft. Myers Feb. 24.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

I have as yet no intimation of the changes in pars that may be made for play with the new ball, or what changes may be made in the yardages regulating pars, but I rather look for the coming now of the 6 par. Here and there we now have a 6 par — the Congressional in Washington, D. C., is a 6 par — and somebody told me not long ago of a 7 par, though I have never seen one played a 7 par hole. We may have quite a few 7 pars, though, with the new ball, I would say that 600 yards or thereabouts would call for a 6 par with the new ball, while such a hole isn't very good golf, now and then such a long one is necessary to get you to a certain point on the course, as at the Congressional course in Washington. Perhaps, too, the rules makers may give us a different ruling on 5 pars, making a slightly shorter yardage call for 5. This would be logical since it would compensate for the par estimate, for the shortened tee shots

Gus Moore to Face Star Field in Curley Mile

FINE RELAY CARD IN K. C. MEET

GUS MOORE of U. of Pittsburgh is entered in the Curley mile race of the William C. Prout Memorial games at the Garden on Saturday night. The entry of Moore fills out the field of fast middle distance men in the race.

Moore, Frank Lindsay of Maine, Penn Hallowell of Harvard and Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., are the stars of the mile field to date. The quartet represents the fastest group which could be assembled in the United States now.

The Pittsburgh star raced in the two-mile feature of the Prout games last year, and forced Paavo Nurmi all the way.

Moore has an easy, graceful stride and plenty of stamina. He is national A. A. U. cross-country champ now.

MOORE IS FAST

Gus Moore ran two miles this year in 9 minutes and 26 seconds. Over the mile route he is very fast. When Lon Larmond of the B. A. A., now in Australia, raced a mile in 4.13 in New York last summer, Moore was just a few steps back of the great Unicorn competitor.

This year Moore has covered a mile in 4.17. That indicates that he is fit to give Conger and the others the race of their careers.

Conger always has been an in and outer, but his good races always are run when the competition is keen. With Lindsay, Moore and Penn Hallowell forcing the pace all the way, whoever gets a leg on the trophy is going to do some fast racing.

There has been a change made in the relay program of the meet. M. I. T., which was to have faced N. U., will have its fast mile team in action, against some suitable foe not yet selected.

FORDHAM TEAM STRONG

That Fordham team has Ray Hurley, John O'Shea, Frank Dwyer and George Simons in action. Each of these can hang out a very fast quarter, and M. I. T. is going to have a terrific battle on its hands.

With the meet only five days away, there are a few good seats left. The games are so good though, that there has been an unusual demand for tickets. The Garden holds many thousands of people, but the sports palace probably will be packed for these games, which shape up as the equal of any in the country this year.

Tickets may be procured at the Boston Garden, the downtown sporting goods stores, and the Knights of Columbus headquarters at the Walker Building, 120 Boylston st.

EMANUEL IN HUB TODAY

Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles heavyweight, will arrive here today for his bout with Jim Maloney at the Boston Garden next Friday night.

Emanuel, who boasts of the best left hand among the present-day heavyweights, will finish his training for this important bout at one of the local gymnasiums.

Emanuel thinks that he is unbeatable in the Hub. He is of the opinion that he can fight better in this city than any other and for this reason he is prepared to hand the fans who think Maloney will win, a big surprise.

No doubt the California Hebrew will rely upon an unerring left hand to carry him to victory. It was this same weapon which beat Jack Gagnon here and it was his left that carried him through two brilliant contests with Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion.

And there was little to choose between the men at the finish. Loughran says that Emanuel is the cleverest heavyweight in the ring today.

Victor Livan, middleweight champion of Italy and K. O. Joe Zelinsky will provide a 10-round semifinal that is certain to sparkle with hard punching. Each boy predicts a knockout victory.

Horowitz Is Top Scorer

New York, Jan. 20—Ed Horowitz of Yale has taken the lead among individual scorers in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League. The Eli forward pushed in two field goals against Cornell to boost his total for three games to 21 points. Tied for second place with 17 points are Lord and Goodpasture of Princeton and Brodbeck of Penn.

Horowitz, Lord and Brodbeck are setting the pace in field goals with eight, and Murphy of Cornell and Booth of Yale are tied for four goals, with six each. Murphy also shares with Cheney of Dartmouth the doubtful distinction of making the most personal fouls.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

"IF Johnny Risko wins from Riccardo Bertazzolo in Cleveland tonight, he will be matched to meet Victorio Campollo at the New York Garden on February 7," said Mr. Boston today. "Campollo has entrenched himself at Gus Wilson's training camp at Orangeburg, N. Y., and is getting ready for his 1930 fistic drive.

"The gigantic Campollo was a sensation when he came here last summer. In his first bout he won on a foul from Arthur DeKuh. He then stepped to bat and belted Tom Heeney out of the picture. He later lost a close decision to Phil Scott.

"Campollo first attracted attention when he knocked out Roberto Roberti in a tussle in the Argentine.

Jack Conway

Boston fans saw Roberti in action on numerous occasions and know that he possessed plenty of ring ability.

"Of course if Bertazzolo should defeat Risko tonight the New York Garden will probably substitute Phil Burcola's sturdy puncher for Rubbery Jawn.

"It is likely that Henry Lamar, Boston heavyweight, will appear on the same card with Campollo. Lamar has been working at Jim Toland's Gym and is ready for action."

PAUL BOWSER called Mr. Boston on the telephone.

"The fans are displaying great interest in the finish wrestling bout between Joe Stecher and Jim Malcewicz at the Arena on Thursday night," said Paul.

"Who do you think will win?" asked Mr. Boston.

"This is a tough bout to dope out," chirped Paul. "Stecher is in the midst of a wild comeback surge, while Malcewicz is one of the best of the younger crop of grapplers."

"Stecher was one of the greatest of our mat champions," went on Mr. Boston. "His famous body scissors crushed all opposition. I agree with you, Paul, when you rate Malcewicz as one of the leaders in the new school of wrestling. What a battle he gave Sonnenberg at the Boston Garden last spring! May the best man win Thursday night."

"I have promised the victor a shot at Gus Sonnenberg," piped Bowser.

"I MET Phil Glassman in New York the other day," said Mr. Boston. "He told me he felt Benny Bass would chill Sammy Fuller when he tackles the North End warrior in a 10-round bout at the Boston Garden on February 7. Bass is one of the best right-hand punchers of his weight in the world. The Bass-Fuller bout will be the initial fistic effort of the MacLean-Weill combination at the Garden.

"HANK WILSON, Eddie Shore and other non-boxers who have been challenged by Arthur (The Great) Shires probably didn't shed any tears when Judge Landis ruled that in future ball players cannot engage in ring contests. With all his talking, Shires was a pretty fair boxer. I do not believe he would have experienced any trouble in defeating all the ball players and hockey stars who might have been matched with him if he had remained in the ring.

"Shires is a colorful figure and should help to increase attendance figures at ball games. The diamond pastime has got dull during the past few years and a few characters like Shires would help to give baseball some of the fire it possessed when Ty Cobb, Bill Carrigan, Hal Chase and other famous stars were blazing their way to fame.

"AL LACY dropped in the office with a flock of New York newspaper clippings which showed that Jake Zeramby of Lynn was entitled to the decision over Herman Perlick of Kalamazoo, Mich., in their 10-round bout at the New York Garden last Friday night. It is seldom that the sport writers are as much in accord as they were in declaring that Zeramby handed Perlick a pasting. The crowd, according to the newspaper accounts, booed the official finding.

"Zeramby is planning to make the trip to Miami, Fla., aboard the Eddie Mack Special. After the Sharkey-Scott bout, Jake will once more be ready to resume campaigning in the lightweight division."

H. C. STAR IN K. C. MEET

Jimmy Daley, Holy Cross sprint star, who will run in Prout Memorial games under K. C. auspices at the Garden on Saturday night.

B. U. Enters Squad of 23 in K. of C. Games

COACH FREDDIE BURNS of the Boston University track team will enter a squad of 23 runners, the largest Terrier entry ever, in the Knights of Columbus meet at the Boston Garden Saturday night.

B. U. will be represented at the K. C. classic by both varsity and freshman one-mile relay quartets, and by individual entries in the open events. The full list of Terrier runners is 50-yard dash, Norman Bicknel, Lin Pattee, Jos Paterno and Mel Linsky. 45-yard high hurdles, Ted Adams, Al Lebowitz and Franklin Leeds. N. E. A. A. U. 300-yard championship, Bicknel, Paterno and Hank Bernhart. 600-yard run, Norman George, Kenneth Chadwell and Ron Harmon. Three-quarter-mile run, Burril Kerr, Dwight Stacey and Doug Bellemore. High Jump, Earl Saunders.

The varsity mile relay quartet which will meet a team yet to be picked will be selected Wednesday from George, Bicknell, Tarr, Harmon, Chadwell and Bernhart. All six are veterans of last year's quartet but the first three are the only ones sure to start, while Harmon, Chadwell and Bernhart will battle it out for the fourth position in a run-off.

B. U. QUARTET FAST

Regardless of the fourth selection, the Terriers will be represented by another speedy quartet and will give their opponents, whoever they are, the stiffest of competition.

The B. U. freshmen will put an untried quartet in the games which will be selected from Paterno, Gluckler, Chamberlain, Lapatkiewicz, Virr, Lebowitz and Sharp. Although no opponent has as yet been selected for these boys by the K. of C. management, word is expected in a day or two as to the identity of their rivals.

Several of the leading runners on both varsity and freshman squads may be deprived of the opportunity of scoring in some of the open events, depending on the position of the relay races. Coach Burns will send his strongest team into action, regardless of the chances of the various individual runners in the other races on the program.

BICKNEL TO BE SAVED

Norman Bicknel, ex-captain of the track team, would ordinarily be a starter in the dash and 300-yard run, but he will not run in either of these events if they come too close to the relay event.

The same condition holds true for George, Harmon, Tarr, Chadwell and Bernhart, but as two of these men will be eliminated from the relay quartet Wednesday, they will be able to try for points in the other events.

George and Tarr, certain starters in the relay event, will both take a fling at the 600 providing it comes early enough on the program, otherwise, Burns will keep them both on the relay. Harmon also is entered in this event and will toe the mark if conditions warrant.

Hank Bernhart, who placed third in the 300-yard championship race last winter at the same meet, will not be a starter in this event if he earns a place on the baton team. It is necessary to run both a qualifying heat and a final in the 300 and so it will be impossible for any of the sprinters to do both that and a quarter mile leg in a relay race.

HOCKEY TEST FOR U. C. SIX

A genuine test between outstanding club teams of the United States and the Maritime Provinces of Canada is in store at the Arena on Friday and Saturday nights, when the Atlantics of Moncton, leaders in the Southern New Brunswick League, will play University Club in a total-goal series.

The Moncton club now is leading the league by two full games, having lost only one of five starts. It is regarded all over the maritime section as the likely representative of the provinces by the sea in the coming Allen Cup playdowns.

Last year the Moncton club won the championship of its league and mopped up the Prince Edward Island champions, but was beaten by Bathurst, the team that went inland to play for the Allen Cup.

This year Moncton has been strengthened by the acquisition of several players from other parts of Canada, who have come to the New Brunswick city to work for the Canadian National Railroad.

Such players as Tommy Redford, former center for the Halifax Socials; "Spec" Peeples, former New Glasgow, N. S., winger; Don Weatherston, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., and Ernie Babcock, formerly of the Digby, N. S., Navy, have added kirk to the team's play.

Fix Dates for Women's Golf

New York, Jan. 20—The women's national golf championship will be decided over the course of the Los Angeles Country Club, October 13-18. Announcement of the dates for the competition, in which Glenna Collett will defend her title was made by H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the United States Golf Association.

The October dates were recommended by the women's committee of the U. S. G. A.

The 1930 championship play will start two weeks later than was the case in 1929.

Dates Coincide

For the first time in many years two associations are assigned the same week in the Grand Circuit, both Syracuse and Indianapolis racing the week of September 1. The by-laws of the Grand Circuit permit this in the case of tracks more than 500 miles apart.

ITALIAN TEAM ON WAY HERE

"Father Bill" Cuddy, director of boxing for St. Joseph's T. A. S., will stage another outstanding amateur tournament on February 3 in the Garden, when he will present a huge international tournament featuring Italy, Olympic champions last year, Germany, and the United States.

The Italian team is already on the high seas, heading for Boston. They left on the Roma, Friday, headed by Saverino Brugiotti, giant heavyweight of Italy. They will arrive in New York January 27, and will come immediately to this city to complete training.

In addition to Brugiotti, the members of the team are Oddone Piazza, middleweight; Werther Arcelli, welterweight; Amilcare De Horatis, lightweight, and Mario Delfante, manager.

The Germans will leave on the Bremen, a five-day boat, next Wednesday and will arrive in New York January 28.

Tiger Six Will Play 3 Games This Week

BOSTON TIGERS will play three games on the road in the five days starting Wednesday.

On that night they will meet their arch-rivals, the Providence Reds, leaders in the Canadian-American League, in Providence.

They will move on to Springfield to meet the talend Indians on Saturday and will go from there to New Haven to tackle the second-place Eagles on Sunday.

Victory has become more or less of a crying necessity to the Tigers, who have faded from first place to fourth in the protracted slump which started on Dec. 1.

Manager Eddie Powers still has confidence in his players and will strive this week to get them back into the passing game, which made them all but invincible at the start of the season.

In their 3 to 2 defeat by Philadelphia Arrows in the Garden, Tigers proved themselves better fighters than hockey players, for it was the consensus that they came out on top in the gang war which featured the second period. As far as hockey went they wasted opportunity after opportunity to score.

Deacon Waite, generally sure death in front of the net, missed three goals after beating the Arrow defense. Other Tigers in great position to bring off a winning shot, missed the net or hit the goal-keeper time after time.

The Tigers practiced at the Garden today. They will not play again in Boston until a week from Saturday, when they are scheduled to meet the rugged New Haven Eagles.

Lindley Choice

W. W. Lindley, former superintendent of speed at the Illinois State Fair, is mentioned as the probable successor of Roy Miller, as manager of the Lexington Grand Circuit meeting.

DOG SHOW HERE NEXT MONTH

Formal announcement of the details of the 13th annual show of the Eastern Dog Club in Boston on February 20, 21 and 22 is contained in the premium list just issued by the club.

It shows an attractive list of prizes, a group of widely known judges, and most important of all, the transfer of the show to the new exhibition hall in the Boston Garden in the North Station.

For 17 consecutive years the Eastern club held its show in Mechanics Hall. But the completion of the new exhibition building was taken advantage of by the club because it meant that the Boston show can be held in an arena which is the replica of the New York Garden, and which has done so much to make the New York show an unusual spectacle.

Under the regulations of Massachusetts, which forbid the showing of dogs which had their ears cropped after September 1, 1928, the club calls the attention of exhibitors to the fact that dogs cropped prior to that date must be specially registered, and those cropped afterward cannot be accepted for entry in the show.

Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The man who spits in public places is no worse an offender against public decency than the workman who rolls cigars with dirty fingers and tips the ends with spit.

Why punish the one and yet tolerate the filthy practice of the other? Smoke a cigar made in the most modern, spotless clean manner ... Certified Cremo. Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar your physician has in mind when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

HINT ON ETIQUETTE OF MAKING A BILLION

(The Life of John D. Rockefeller by John K. Winkler.)

One day, in a Cleveland street car, a lady whom he knew sat beside him. Rockefeller handed the conductor a quarter. The latter returned fifteen cents change. "You have made a mistake, my friend," insisted Rockefeller. "Aren't you paying two fares?" asked the conductor. "No," returned Rockefeller shortly. "Let this be a lesson to you, young man. Never take anything for granted." Flushing painfully, the lady fished out a nickel and paid her own fare.

PROVIDENCE TO SEEK SOUTHERN N. E. OPTION

Providence, Jan. 20 (AP)—Members of the industrial development council of the Providence Chamber of Commerce expect to confer with Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, either in New York or Montreal within a week relative to details of an option on the Southern New England Railroad from Palmer, Mass., to tidewater in this city.

This was announced today by A. L. Aldred, president of the council.

The Providence Chamber expects to go forward with its own plan for completing the Southern New England line as a means of developing the port of Providence through a trunk line connection while awaiting an alternative plan which directors of the New Haven railroad last Saturday promised to offer, Mr. Aldred said.

Sir Henry already has assured the Providence group of his willingness to grant an option on the Canadian National's interests in the road and has wired them that he will be available for conference to arrange details sometime this week.

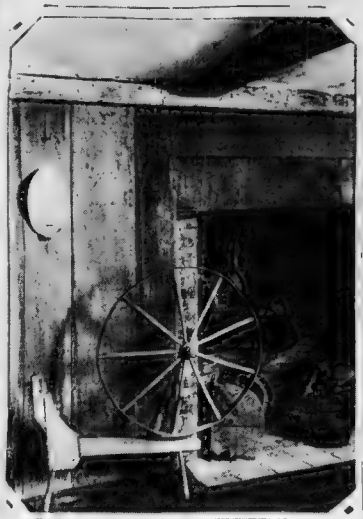
Antiques



Here's a fireplace corner dating from 1690, built into the Sweet Ilsley house at Newburyport. The most conspicuous household objects to be seen are the inevitable spinning wheel, the candlesconce on the wall, and the roasting-oven on the hearth. The end of the gait for turning the meat may be seen protruding through the center of the oven, just below the spinning wheel. At the bottom of the oven is a spout for pouring out the drippings for gravy after the meat has been cooked. (Photo by Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.)

New England's zealously-preserved ancient household treasures, from the first crude implements of pioneer handiwork, through advancing stages of technique and artistry, appeal to the lover of the beautiful and to the student of history.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. Material should be addressed to "Antiques Editor, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston."

TARIFF VOTED ON FELT HATS BY SENATE

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—Taking up miscellaneous amendments to the tariff bill which had been passed over, the Senate today approved a rate of 33 cents a pound and 30 per cent ad valorem on colored wool felt hats.

This is the same duty agreed upon last week for hat bodies and forms of wool felt which represent a slight increase over present rates on the unfinished articles. At that time an amendment to provide a higher differential for finished hats was rejected.

The Senate also adopted amendments to the tariff bill to wipe out existing countervailing provisions relating to coal, gunpowder, sodium acetate or chloride nitrate, manamid, paper board, wall board and pulp board.

Elimination of the countervailing clauses was proposed by Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, who said the state department had informed him the provisions of to considerable "disadvantage and dissatisfaction."

The countervailing provisions whereby the United States to raise its tariffs on the products mentioned to the level of duties by other nations on similar products of this country.

All of the products affected except paper board, wall board and pulp board, now dutiable at 10 per cent, are on the American free list.

Approval was given to an amendment by Senator Walsh, Dem., Massachusetts, to retain the present levy of 5 per cent on pulp board in rolls for use in manufacturing wall board. The House and finance committee bills proposed an increase to 10 per cent.

Father, too, finds REM good for coughs

The two Boase children, John and Margery, of 144 E. 8th Ave., Columbus, Ohio, had very severe coughs for a time. Their mother, Mrs. C. W. Boase, tried several remedies without apparent success. Then she saw a REM ad and bought a bottle at Crouse's Drug Store on 5th Ave. near 4th St. It brought quick relief to both the Boase children. "REM proved wonderful," says Mrs. Boase. Then she adds, "Last spring we were on a picnic at Olentangy Park and John caught another cold and in the morning when he got up he had an awful cough, and I went to Crouse's as soon as the store was open, for a bottle of REM—I had used all I had—and the next morning he didn't have a sign of a cough. When my husband gets a cough, he takes REM too."

REM's exclusive formula explains its splendid results. Economical, too!

ASSESSOR CONDEMNS 'UNFAIR' AUTOMOBILE TAX

Mother of Missing Tech Boy Seeks Him in California

A Wonderful Love Story by Author of 'Hollywood Girl,' 'Easy.'

What Has Happened Before

Happiness and love have remained steadfastly with Tom and Lovejoy Nicholson during the first year of married life. The arrival of Tom, Jr., brought more joy to the little green bungalow. Then comes Mrs. Aline Alderson, rich but childless neighbor, to sow the first seeds of discontent. When Tom refuses to go to the Aldersons's New Year's party, Lovejoy is incensed. But their first quarrel is patched up and they go to the party. Mrs. Alderson's husband is elderly. Lovejoy is glad she has Tom who has youth and looks if not money.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 9

SHE saw him jump out of his car and come tearing across the lawn like a boy.

And, like a boy, he took the front steps in his stride and came bursting into the living-room, slamming the front door behind him so that the whole house shook.

"Whatever brings you home at this hour?" Lovejoy asked him eagerly, in an excited whisper. The baby was having his afternoon nap at this hour.

"Good news," Tom answered. "Can't you see it written all over me like the headlines in a newspaper? — Lovejoy, we're made. I just sold Allen Alderson's company a gob of bonds as big as a house. A hundred of them."

Satisfaction beamed from his eyes and his whole face.

"But what does that mean? What does that mean to you and me in actual dollars and cents?" Lovejoy asked.

Like most women, she did not understand the mysteries of her husband's business.

Tom laughed.

"Well, it means we'll have a little more money than we've been having," he explained. "And, besides that, it was a wonderful stroke of luck in another way. . . . You see, after a fellow makes a big sale like this one of mine for Alderson, other people are likely to come to him for their bonds. It's a kind of advertisement."

He went on with his explanation.

But Lovejoy wasn't listening to him, although her gray eyes, and their flecks of gold, were fixed on his.

"It means more money," she was thinking. "More money at last!"

It meant that she could hire a girl to come in and help her with the housework and the baby, perhaps. . . . It meant that once in a while she could get out of the house and go down town to shop with Mrs. Alderson. . . . It meant freedom, on a small scale.

"And just think, this never would have happened to you, Tom," she said, "if you hadn't gone to the Aldersons' house on New Year's Day with me. . . . You see, we've got to get out and meet people. It's a help in your business to know people with money, isn't it?"

Tom nodded his dark handsome head. "Yes, I guess it is," he answered gravely. "And we've got to get out once in a while, anyway, Lovejoy. I see that it's getting on your nerves to be cooped up in the house all the time."

He came across the room and took her in his arms, holding both of her small work-hardened hands in one of his big ones.

"The only kick I get out of making money is telling people about it," he went on, " and giving it to you to spend. . . . I want you to have all the things that other women have. New clothes and. . . .

"And some furniture of our own instead of this rented stuff!" Lovejoy finished the sentence for him. "Some silver for the table and a few chairs like the one that Mrs. Alderson had on her table the other day. And a lot of lovely big fluffy bath-towels and bath-mats and a Pompadour silk bed-spread like the one I saw in Mrs Alderson's bedroom."

Ever since New Year's day the little furnished house had struck Lovejoy with its cheapness and its shabbiness as it never had before. She had begun to hate the little place that had looked like an earthly Paradise to her only four months before.

She wanted a house like Aline Alderson's house now. . . . Thick soft rugs, wood fires, bowls of roses everywhere, silk curtains, hand-carved chairs and tables. . . .

"I'll never be satisfied with any-

ACID THROWER SENT TO JAIL

Reluctance to make restitution for a coat ruined by acid cost Stephen Samolick, 38, of Park st., Peabody, an extra two months on an original six months' sentence today in Lynn court.

Samolick, arraigned for the alleged destruction of a coat worn by Mrs. Marie Gorieki of Summer st., Lynn, appealed a six months' sentence when Judge Reeve said he would suspend it if Samolick would make $106 restitution.

Forthwith, Judge Reeve revoked the six-months' sentence and imposed one of eight months. Samolick appealed this also and went to the detention pen in lieu of bail. After several hours as a prisoner he had a change of heart and was given permission to withdraw his appeal and promised restitution.

It was testified that Samolick was a rejected suitor of the woman, who testified he threw acid on her coat January 10, some of it burning her leg and stocking.

Within two days the acid had eaten the coat.

Conflict Weakens Church Influence

"The Church of Christ can only triumph by winning victories over apathy, evils and the greatest evil to be conquered is war," Rev. John Smith Lowe stated in his sermon at the Church of the Redemption "In the struggle to influence the powers of the world to cease their fighting, the example of churches set before mankind will be more powerful than preaching. The tendency of churches to perpetuate a state of conflict between themselves renders them weak and puny before the world as the advocates of peace. We cannot hope to lead the nations into the paths of peace until we learn how to keep the peace within our own ranks," he said.

SEARCH FOR HIM IN N.Y. FAILS

Woman Starts for the Pacific Coast Alone, Convinced Her Son Is There

Convinced that her son, Robert W. Wright, 20, missing M. I. T. student, is in California, Mrs. Samuel Wright of Westwood left for the Pacific Coast today to search for him.

Her visit was decided upon after the return of her husband from a fruitless three days' search in New York, where the aid of the police was enlisted.

Young Wright's absence was first noted last Wednesday when his professor in an electrical engineering course received a telegram from the youth, dated New York City, in which he said he was done with school.

The previous day Wright had inquired as to his standing, and had been told that he was one of the best students in the class.

At that time his instructor urged him not to give up the work, pointing out that he had a brilliant future in store.

Nevertheless, a short time later the student told classmates he was "fed up" with study and was going to quit.

His father, informed of the receipt of the telegram, left for New York, where he has a number of relatives, but was unable to get any trace of his son.

This morning Mrs. Wright decided the boy might be in California and started out alone to find him. She said if she found him she would remain on the Coast with him for a time at least.

Thomas Park Approach Plan Is Put to Mayor

FIREMAN HURT, 10 FLEE BLAZE

One fireman was injured, 10 persons were driven to the street and damage to the extent of $15,000 was estimated as a result of a 1 alarm fire early today in a three tenement block at Park st., Dorchester.

Ladderman Michael O'Donnell of Ladder No. 7 fell down a stairway while fighting the flames and was injured so seriously that he was taken to the Boston City Hospital in the police ambulance where it was found that he is suffering from possible internal injuries and a probable fracture of the right leg.

The fire started as a result of an overheated furnace and spread rapidly to all sections of the house. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rabuffetti owners of the block who live on the second floor with other members of their family were aroused by the cracking of the flames and were assisted to the street by firemen.

They also succeeded in arousing the family of Joseph Cordani, who lives on the first floor, and members of this family had a narrow escape, groping their way out.

No one lives on the third floor The fire gained considerable headway from the start, and fire officials who arrived on the scene early deemed it best to sound a second alarm.

$100,000 MALL UP TO CURLEY

A mall to cost $100,000, which would constitute a proper approach to the marble memorial tower in Thomas Park, Dorchester Heights, has been suggested to Mayor James M. Curley by William P. Long, chairman of the board of park commissioners.

Chairman Long suggests that the mall be constructed in connection with the Strandway development that Mr. Curley plans to complete this year.

Mr. Long says a direct approach to the tower can be made from the proposed new boat landing at the edge of Columbus bathing beach He suggests a mall 100 feet wide at the lower end and 70 feet wide at the crest of the incline, with groups of steps at intervals.

If the plan is carried out, it will be necessary to take the land on which several inexpensive dwellings rest.

Postoffice Will Auction Magazines

Another public auction of undelivered magazines, the majority of them of recent issue, will be held in the lobby of the postoffice on the first floor of Young's Hotel at noon on Wednesday.

The magazine will be disposed of in packages of six and will sell for a small fraction of their original cost.

Weight? That Is Her Exclusive Secret!

Where there's a will there's no weigh.

Because she refused to tell an Arlington policeman how much she weighed, Majorie S Burr, 31, of Glen rd, Winchester, was taken to the Arlington police station after a two-mile automobile chase.

Patrolman George F. Moore testified in East Cambridge district court today that she was driving without lights and refused to stop on his signal.

He commandeered a car and chased her two miles, he said. When he asked her the usual questions, she refused to tell him her weight and declared she would rather go to the station than reveal it

Judge Stone said that if she would not appeal he would place the charges on file providing she paid a cost of $10.

She agreed and left the court with her weight still puzzling the Arlington police and the court.

CANADIAN RY. IN NEW OFFICES

With Mayor James M. Curley as guest of honor, the new offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway were dedicated today in the Masonic building, Tremont and Boylston sts

Mayor Curley was greeted by T. E. P. Pringle, manager of the New England office, and given a complimentary ticket on the railroads made out in blank form

"You can fill it out for any point in Canada you want, on your next vacation," suggested the manager

"I'd like to see that park some time," replied the mayor

This park is the centerpiece of the wall decorations It is painted on ground glass from an original in oils and is 11 feet square, illuminated from behind.

The main office is luxuriously appointed, with a comfortably furnished lounge in front for customers.

Shaw was a gate tender at the Main st crossing of the Boston & Maine Railroad in Wilmington. Recently he obtained on three months' leave of absence. One son and one daughter, both of Wilmington, survive him.

AUTO EXCISE TAX 'UNFAIR,' SAYS KELLY

Abatement in Boston Forbidden by Law, the Chief Assessor Explains

"A rank injustice is being done to owners who wish to sell, trade or exchange their autos within a current year under the existing motor excise tax," declared Edward T Kelly, chairman of the board of assessors at City Hall, today

More than 500 applications are on file at the motor excise tax division of the city assessing department seeking abatement of the double tax imposed by law upon persons who have sold cars or otherwise disposed of them during the last year.

"Boston" said Chairman Kelly, "has no legal right or authority to make such a refund The only avenue of escape so far as Boston is concerned is to petition the Legislature for relief It is eminently unfair to tax citizens two full years taxation on cars that have been sold and this has occurred in many cases.

BOSTON ORDERS LAW

"In the opinion of the corporation counsel handed down nearly a year ago, it was pointed out that Boston must obey the law as it was passed by the Legislature and that is just what we have been doing regardless of the fact that other cities and towns have been abating the motor excise tax.

"In accordance with the ruling of the law department of the city, no abatement can be permitted by Boston in any case where an automobile has been sold, traded or exchanged during the taxable year 1929

"The above ruling is based on the express wording of the statute which created an excise on registered motor vehicles."

"Under the present method of administering the motor excise law in Boston" continued Kelly, "a taxpayer who had registered an automobile on January 1, 1929 and on March 1, 1929, traded this car for another car is liable for excise on each auto registered by him.

TYPICAL CASE

"For example: A registered an auto on January 1, 1929, on March 1 1929 A traded his car to a dealer to another car which he registered on that date In due time not earlier than 60 days after date of registration, A was billed for motor excise on each car and is liable on each, under the ruling set forth as above.

"Since the permits of no abatement to A on account of the traded car, his redress should come through the dealer to whom he traded, and this would be effected by a clause in the contract of sale whereby the dealer would assume a pro-rata part of the excise assessed to A, and pass on such proportions a part to any subsequent purchaser of this car

"A, as I have explained the car is alone liable and all subsequent registrants in the same year get a tax-free car In the event that the dealer did not dispose of A's car during the same year, the excise assessed by him on account of A's sale could be charged to expense as cost of goods sold"

Thus Kelley explained to the people of Boston who have been sorely tried in an effort to analyze the conflicting motor excise tax the position of the city because of the law, which he admits is a burden but for the present time is unchangeable, unless the State tax commissioner and the present Legislature take action

GETS LEGAL ADVICE

When it became known that outside cities and towns were making abatements on cars and that Boston was refusing to do likewise, Kelley sought the advice of Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland on two pertinent questions

First—Whether the rule or regulation numbered one promulgated by the commissioner of corporations and taxation respecting the excise tax upon registered motor vehicles is within the authority of the commission; and second, whether the board of assessors may make abatements for any reason other than (1) excess valuations and (2) because of change of ownership or registration an additional tax has been imposed.

Part of Deland's answer (3) Chairman Kelly with reference to the first question is as follows: "The Legislature has spoken on the question of abatements in a very definite manner. In section one of the act it said 'Nothing in the foregoing provision shall be construed to prevent local assessors from granting an abatement in any case in which the valuation aforesaid is, in their opinion, excessive.

S. S. LANCASTRIA DOCKS WITH CARGO OF BRIDES AND "TO BE'S"

SWEETHEARTS UNITED AT HUB PIER

One Couple Ending Honeymoon Had Kept the Fact Secret

A ship of brides and near brides docked at East Boston today, landing and reuniting several happy couples when the vessel dc d at the Cunard pier.

She was the Cunarder Lancastria, making a day late from Queenstown and Liverpool, having buffeted strong gales near the end of the journey.

One couple, Thomas Whiteoak of Providence and Miss Alice Firth of Yorkshire, England, were reunited in the saloon of the vessel when Whiteoak appeared before Immigration Inspector William Nitz to claim his bride-to-be.

Whiteoak came here six years ago and a love that grew since childhood waxed stronger by mail.

Already armed with a marriage license, the couple were speedily passed. With Miss Edna Smith of the Traveler's Aid Society as a guide, the couple were married at St. Paul's Cathedral. Tremont at . Miss Smith witnessed the marriage, making more than a score she has attended in her decade of waterfront work.

Proof that a happy bride can keep a secret was revealed when Mr. and Mrs. William Livingston were landed to continue a two-months' honeymoon with a sightseeing trip. Mrs. Livingston was Vera Briggle of Lawton, Oklahoma.

The couple were married at Lawton, but will make their home at Clinton, Mo., on their return.

Another couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Balfour of Cambridge were united after a twist in the immigration laws was untwisted.

The pair were married last October while Mrs. Balfour was a resident here on a visitor's permit good for three months.

As her permit was up at the time of her wedding, she returned to her home at Bradford, England, while her new husband made formal application for her admittance as his wife.

Three motherless children, returning to their father's house in Jamaica Plain, were among the passengers aboard. They were Phillips Dunham, eight; her brother, Lawrence, seven, and Margaret, four. The children went to live with their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Isabella B. Thompson, at Bradford, England, last April, following the death of their mother.

Today Mrs. Thompson and an aunt, Miss Marion J. Thompson, brought them back, to be met by Bowes Dunham, their father. Dunham is employed at the Museum of Fine Arts and makes his home at 140 Moss Hill rd., Jamaica Plain.

Adam Moskaluk of 1458 Coney Island ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., driver of the car, was badly shaken.

According to the Somerville police, Moskaluk evidently lost control of his car, and it skidded across the street into the pole.

Moskaluk pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge M. E. Sturtevant in Somerville district court today, charged with operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public. He was held in bail of $500 for trial on Wednesday.

Asks Square Deal for War Veterans

The civil service commission was accused of not giving the war veterans a "square deal" by Paul Peter, chairman of the Federal County unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at a hearing today before the legislative committee on state administration.

Peter favored a change in the makeup of the commission so that a veteran would be a member.

Expert Give Thomas Smith of Fall River favored the change. "No department in the state sent us has failed to do with the affairs of ex-service men," he said, "than civil service. The man should be on the commission, he argued, who understands the viewpoint of the ex-service man.

Pastor Praises Heroism of Troy

In the course of service in the First United Presbyterian Church, the minister Dr. D. W. Macleod spoke the following reference to the death of Police Officer James J. Troy.

"We were all deeply touched by the sad news of the murder last Monday night of another member of the police force. Not far from here James J. Troy, a war veteran, a bright, fearless police officer, the father of a family of four young children, was shot down by a thug he was sent to arrest.

"No city ever had a more heroic body of men in its service than the present police force of Boston, and because of their faithfulness and courage it is becoming alarmingly too common for one of them to forfeit his life in the discharge of his official duty."

BOY'S SAVINGS HELP SWELL TROY FUND

Benefit Performance Tonight at Majestic; Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald in Plea

"Here's my savings of $2.46. I wish I had more."

Alfred DeMattia, nine, of Havre st., East Boston, called at the office of Joseph W. Bennett, 150 Orleans st., and said he wanted to give his bank account for the Troy fund.

The boy had his iron bank with him. He pried it open and dumped out a great collection of nickels, dimes and pennies.

"I want the family of that policeman to have it all," he said.

Bennett, chairman of the fund, promised to turn the full amount over to Joseph L. McNamara, treasurer, at the South Boston branch of the Federal National Bank.

Little Alfred typifies the spirit of those who are eager to help swell the fund for the murdered policeman's wife and four—perhaps five—children. There are now four youngsters, and a fifth is expected momentarily. A child who will never be held in its father's arms.

BENEFIT TONIGHT

The fund is off to a good start and it will be swelled this week by a series of benefit theatrical performances which start tonight at the Majestic Theatre. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has broadcast the following appeal in connection with tonight's show.

"Tonight in the Majestic Theater the Shubert management will give a benefit performance of Eleanor Painter in 'The Fortune Teller' for the Troy fund. As this comic opera is regarded as one of the outstanding compositions of the great Victor Herbert, those who attend will enjoy a most wonderful performance as well as contribute most worthily to a noble cause.

"I ask the citizens of Boston to respond to this call. Tickets are sold at popular prices. Let our policemen understand that when they stand ready to die in defense of our lives and our homes that we will not let their families be pauperized."

Thursday night there will be a benefit performance at the Central Theater, East Boston, with Rep. "Bill" Barker as master of ceremonies. Some of the headliners who have volunteered their services are Herb Taylor, the Belmont Four, Frank Lang, the Rythm Boys, Grace Chadwick, Walsh & Thomas, Virginia Lee, Paul Murray and the Corbet Miniature Revue.

Friday night there will be a monster benefit show in the Broadway Theater, South Boston, with headliners of vaudeville.

Thursday evening there will be a basketball benefit game between Fitton A. C. and Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, in Columbus Hall in Maverick sq., East Boston. This will be at 8 o'clock.

CAMBRIDGE ACTIVE

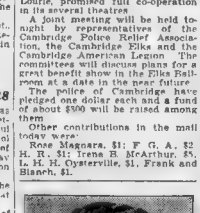
New England Theatres Operating Corporation, through manager Lourie, promised full co-operation in its several theatres.

A joint meeting will be held tonight by representatives of the Cambridge Police Relief Association, the Cambridge Elks and the Cambridge American Legion. The committees will discuss plans for a great benefit show in the Elks Ballroom at a date in the near future.

The police of Cambridge have pledged one dollar each and a fund of about $500 will be raised among them.

Other contributions in the mail today were:

Rose Magoara, $1; F. G. A., $2; H. R., $1; Irene B. McArthur, $1; L. H. H. Oysterville, $1, Frank and Bianch, $1.



Weak After Operation

"About five months ago, following an operation for appendicitis I did not gain strength enough to be up and about. My mother and sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken five bottles and it has helped me to get strong so I can do my own housework now. I have recommended it to several friends who have been weak and run-down."—Mrs. Oscar Cinen, Box 474, Thief River Falls, Minn.

SMUGGLING CAT HELD IN JAIL

"Peter," the Somerville police department house kitten, was in durance vile today, awaiting disposition of a smuggling charge. Being a juvenile, he may escape severe punishment, but the police plan to get even with him by watering his milk.

"Peter" was a vagrant when the Somerville coppers gave him a home. In return he promised to clear the premises of mice.

But Patrolman James Fitzpatrick caught him violating his trust by smuggling cigarettes from one jail cell to another. He discovered "Peter" tiptoeing down the cell corridor, from one prisoner to another, with three cigarettes tied about his neck by a pipe cleaner.

"Peter" was very much abashed as he should have been. Whether his promise of future good behavior will result in a dismissal of the smuggling charge has not been decided, but he'll be fed on skim milk for a few days anyway.

Mrs. Tilton Plans a "Front Window Campaign"

A "parlor window" campaign will be conducted by Mrs. Elisabeth Tilton, ardent dry advocate, in the event that she is a candidate for the United States Senate next fall.

According to Mrs. Tilton she would eliminate the time-honored custom of touring the entire Commonwealth, making speeches as a medium for winning votes, but would have posters placed in as many parlor windows as possible. On these posters, in addition to an appeal for votes, would be a warning against the evils of liquor.

PREMIER M'DONALD'S SON CALLS BOSTON TOWER MONSTROSITY

ARCHITECT THINKS IT GHASTLY

Admires State House and Colonial Buildings, but Oh, the Custom House

Boston has more beautiful buildings than any other city in America, but the Custom House tower "is a ghastly freak of architecture."

This is the opinion of Alister Gladstone MacDonald, architect son of Ramsay MacDonald, premier of Great Britain, who has been visiting here since Friday.

"I've admired your State House, the Old State House, Faneuil Hall and many other colonial buildings and homes in Boston," he said, "but such monstrosities as the Custom House tower are enough to make the people of this historical city flee in revolt."

The oldest son of Britain's Labor Premier is in America for architectural research and spent 10 days in New York before coming to Boston. This afternoon he leaves for Cleveland, and his itinerary includes a visit to Hollywood's film colony in California.

STUDYING ARCHITECTURE.

"I am an architect and practice in London, and I came to America to study its remarkable architecture, and particularly to make an inspection of the construction of modern film studios in Hollywood," he volunteered.

"You see, I am interested in the design of film studios in England, and I realized that this country has much to offer, not only in ideas, but also in handling the architectural problems of the day.

In his suite in the Hotel Statler he chatted amiably with newspapermen, and gave an outward indication of being impressed over the high position in which his father is placed.

"Architecture comes first with me," he said. "I am not interested in politics only as a secondary topic. Of course, everyone is interested in the naval parley, which is about to open in London.

B. GLAND WANTS PEACE

"There is no subterfuge in connection with Great Britain's participation in these parleys seeking a reduction in naval armament. She has a genuine desire for world peace and seeks to further the friendly relations existing between the two great English-speaking nations. Any reports to the contrary are erroneous and misleading."

He smiled when he was questioned as to his opinion of prohibition.

"Outside of my personal views I will say that you cannot legislate the morals of a people."

During his stay in Boston he has been the guest of Harold B. Willis of Weston and the noted Salem, Marblehead, Cambridge and other cities and towns. He was impressed with the House of the Seven Gables, Old Christ Church in Cambridge, the buildings of Harvard and the colonial home of Prof. William Emerson on Brattle st.

IN LOVE WITH BOSTON

"I think Prof. Emerson's home is one of the loveliest examples of colonial architecture I have ever been privileged to see," he remarked.

"I came to America to study architecture. I've fallen completely in love with Boston and regret that I have to leave so soon. I hope to pay a return visit, however, in the near future."

MacDonald is married and the father of two charming girls, but neither Mrs. MacDonald or the children are with him on this visit to America.

"It's purely a business proposition with me," he said, "but I hope to come again and bring my family along."

STONEHAM ASKS FOR RELIEF

The financial inability of Stoneham to bear any large part of the cost of a new route for relieving traffic congestion at Stoneham square was stressed today at a hearing before the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs.

The plan under discussion called for rerouting traffic from South st. along Pond st. parallel to Main st. for a distance of about one and one-half miles.

Representative Samuel Standish declared it was first proposed to assess 28 per cent of the cost on Stoneham which would mean an outlay for the town of $105,000. The next proposal, he said, was to make part of the new road a state highway. In view of the fact the congestion is caused by through traffic, he said the state might well finance the whole proposition.

The speaker pointed out the town is under a heavy bonded now because of being forced to pay a share of metropolitan improvements from which the benefits are slight.

Ex-Metropolitan Policeman Dies

SELECTMAN WAS ERRONEOUSLY QUOTED

Connell of Weymouth Claims He Did Not Advocate the Curley Annexation Plan

Selectman William A. Connell of Weymouth today denied the statement printed in Saturday's Boston Evening American quoting him as favoring the annexation of Weymouth to Mayor Curley's plan for a Metropolitan Boston.

"I most decidedly made no statement advocating the annexation," he said today. "I did admit that a metropolitan Boston might be important to the solution of the Weymouth sewerage problem but as for Mayor Curley's plan, in direct relation to Weymouth, I had nothing and I have nothing to say. I deny having made any statement concerning extension of the Boston Elevated or possible tax reduction resultant from a metropolitan Boston.

If the statement printed Saturday placed an erroneous interpretation upon Selectman Connell's views, the Boston Evening American takes this occasion to correct it.

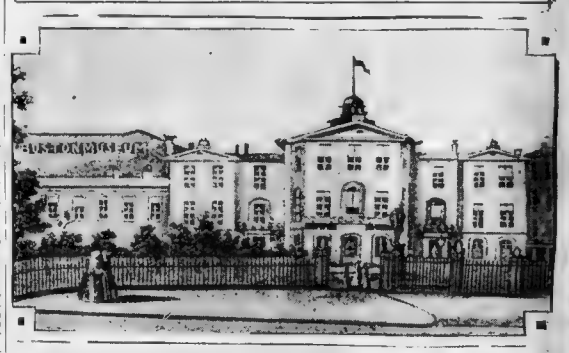
STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

A day that might have meant so much—and she has to be excused. What a pity there's a woman left who does not know of Midol! One or two tablets in time, and not a twinge of pain throughout the periodic process. Or an end to such suffering at any time, five to seven minutes after Midol is taken. Yet this merciful medicine is non-narcotic. Its wonderful results are due to the fact it acts directly on the organs affected; so it's utterly harmless, and it is only common sense to use it. Midol comes in a clever little case of metal you can slip in the smallest purse. And the cost of this comfort is fifty cents.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 161



THOUGH built in 1811, Boston's first City Hall (on the site of the present structure in School st.) was not occupied by the City Government until the latter had been in existence some time. Boston formally became a city May 1, 1822, when John Phillips assumed the mayor's chair. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

Boy, 5, Dies in Fit of Whooping Cough

Seized with a fit of coughing, John McDonough, five, strangled to death today in his home in C st., South Boston.

The boy, a sufferer from whooping cough, was found unconscious in his bed by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McDonough. Dr. Scannell was called but when he arrived he pronounced the child dead.

Ministers Stress Better Education

A resolution urging more attention to elementary education in the United States was adopted today by Baptist ministers holding their weekly conference in Chipman Hall, Tremont Temple. An interna tioned conference on the subject with a view to ending illiteracy was suggested.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little unrest—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

500 Indian Maids Sacrificed to a Star!

For centuries the most beautiful of the Pawnees' captive girls had their hearts torn out and their bodies filled with arrows thick as the quills of a Porcupine — and now, after years of search, the sacred pit where they were buried has been discovered.

As the girl hung to the scaffold, thinking the ceremonies only a harmless play and utterly ignorant of her doom, the executioner leaped from cover and sent his arrow through her heart, and then that heart was torn from her breast, and the Pawnee men and boys rushed up to the altar and filled her body with arrows.

Read how proof of this gruesome ceremony has just been uncovered in Merrick County, Nebraska.

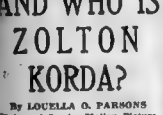
FIFI DORSAY WILL HAVE LEADING ROLE IN "HELL'S BELLES"

AND WHO IS ZOLTON KORDA?

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

[Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.]

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20—We can go on with our knitting and family chores, George Grossmith's job with the Fox Company has been definitely settled. Ever since he announced he had signed a contract people have been wondering what he would do first. He will assist in the production of "Hell's Bells," an original melodrama by himself and Zolton Korda. Seems to be a Korda monopoly in this, for Alexander Korda will direct. Wonder who Zolton Korda is? Can he be Alexander hiding behind a nom de plume?



Loella O. Parsons

Fifi Dorsay, the little French Lupe Velez, and J. Harold Murray, brought here from the Broadway Stage, will have the leads. Maybe I shouldn't call Fifi the French edition of Lupe. They are really not alike except that they both have such a tremendous amount of vitality and vivacity.

Ned A. Marin is the associate producer. By and bye, "Hell's Bells" sounds vara, verra promising as a title.

I have never known anyone to fade so completely from sight as Renee Adoree has in the last few months. One of the screen's best actresses, she seems to have retired to her shell where few of her friends or acquaintances have seen her. But she is coming back to the screen and in one of the best roles she has had in the talkies.

She plays one of the feminine leads in "The Singer of Seville," opposite Ramon Novarro, directed by Jordan, who has played in two previous Novarro pictures, will again be the juvenile lead. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer apparently sets stars by this youngster, who seems to be forging rapidly to the front. One thing in this business, they either make good or they become a total loss.

That amazing person, Jetta Goudal, is to play the lead in a French version of "The Unholy Night," to be made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Jacques Feyder, who saw Miss Goudal in a French picture, asked that she be given the part, and subsequent events proved that Monsieur Feyder had good judgment.

Alice Joyce has stopped house-hunting. Why should she pay rent on a Hollywood home when she is going to be away for two months? She has gone to San Francisco, where she will open in two weeks in a Henry Duffy stake play, "Her Friend, the King," with Hale Hamilton as her leading man.

Corinne Griffith and Walter Morosco are taking a vacation in Yosemite Valley. Corinne had expected to go there to shoot scenes in the snow but the snow was so long getting here she finally abandoned the idea, so the trip is now more or less in the nature of a holiday. She has no picture to make until May, when she begins to work on "The Lost Lady," Willa Cather's novel.

One of the newest bridegrooms in Hollywood is Francis MacDonald who has just been added to Buddy Rogers' picture, "Safety in Numbers." He plays the heavy. Mr. MacDonald married Irene May Schuch, of Indianapolis, and this is his first picture since his marriage.

Sam Hardy is playing an important part in "The Gay Nineties," Marion Davies' next picture. Again I explain that is only a tentative title. Robert Montgomery may be located on the Norma Shearer set in "The Divorcee," in an important role.

Howard Estabrook finished at the Fox Company one day and signed as a writer at First National the next day. Natalie Moorhead, a sleek blonde vamp of the stage and screen, gets one of the leading roles in "The Benson Murder Case."

Every now and then in a while Clara Beranger gets tired of being just Mrs. William DeMille. Why shouldn't she when she knows so well the technique of the screen, Eh, has just signed a new contract with Pathe whereby she is to adapt an original modern story for them.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Colleen Moore and John McCormick dining together and making a grand rush to get tickets for the opening of "The Rogue Song." Sam Harris making a speech before the microphone along with all the local celebrities. Irving Thalberg pacing up and down in the lobby of Grauman's Chinese Theater at the opening awaiting the verdict.

Psychic Marvel at Loew's State to Be Given Dinner

A luncheon is given at the Ritz-Carlton today in honor of Miss Gene Dennis, 22-year old psychic marvel, opening an indefinite engagement at Loew's State this afternoon. Before she was out of high school, Miss Dennis was receiving thousands of letters from all over the world asking her help in discovering lost articles, locating missing relatives and aiding and advising people in every walk of life.

She has appeared before eminent scientists from Yale, Harvard and Columbia Universities.

"PARTY GIRL" EXPOSES RACKET

"PARTY GIRL" says it with realism. This Tiffany production, now at the Modern and Beacon, marking the change of policy to first-run pictures at these two theaters, dives into its story frankly and reveals a new sort of "racket" in the city life. Melodramatic situations pile up for the thrills, and the panorama of night life in the night clubs, with interwoven society and business threads. The drama brings to the fore for the first time a novel "racket," one in which beautiful girls are employed. These girls are listed by name and address and telephone number at agencies that are on the private lists of certain mercantile establishments. In this system of things the girls are used to entertain clients, and by use of their charms induce them to buy in large quantities of the business houses interested.

With this "racket" as the central theme, the plot deals with the love and fortunes of girls, who, because of economic or other circumstances, are caught in the net of this mode of livelihood.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., achieves new laurels as the son of a wealthy manufacturer who figures largely in the "racketeering." Young Fairbanks gives an amazingly lifelike characterization. To Jeanette Loff is given the role of the heroine, sweet-heart of young Fairbanks. She acquits herself creditably.

Marie Prevost, long known to fame, is cast as the "queen" of the modern vampires; she is the boss of the party girls. She is the best of the performers.

Acceptable work is always the share of John St. Polis. In "Party Girl," he is satisfyingly fine. A name unknown to film lovers is that of Judith Barrie; she is Hollywood's latest "find." As a girl who tricks young Fairbanks into wedding, and later takes her own life, she gives a realistic performance.

"Party Girl" deserves credit for its exposure in telling in an interesting manner of a business strategy that must call for everyone's condemnation. The story is excellently handled, and the photography is superb. "Party Girl" is worth seeing and hearing.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

BIG 'SHOW OF SHOWS' FILM AT SCOLLAY

THAT peppy, sterful Warner Bros. singing, dancing and natural color revue, the "Show of Shows," is playing to big crowds at the Scollay Sq. Olympia. This spectacular production includes scores upon scores of stage and screen and a supporting people numbering over half a thousand. Every form of the dances known, and many new creations by those wizards of the light fantastic, are included in the glittering and melodious numbers of the extravaganza. Every sort of theatrics has its especial "spot" during the panorama of theatrical glory. John Barrymore magnificently presents a scene from Shakespeare's "King Henry VI," Irene Bordoni sings her chic songs in her delightfully broken English; Winnie Lightner does her tomfoolery with the aid of gentle Bull Montana; Myrna Loy and Nick Lucas put on a Chinese fantasy which has all the magic of the East, and there are songs tuneful and haunting.

Heading the vaudeville program are Jimmie Burchall and 1930 blondes, "The Kind Gentlemen Prefer." Here is a group of Broadway stars giving their impressions of many different celebrities, which includes dances, songs and comedy. Co-featured are Francis Dooley and Corinne Sales in a comedy skit entitled "Will Yuh, Jim." Billy Maine & Co. are back in Boston with an entirely new comedy act, "Do You Want to See Phil." Other acts, News Weeklies and short subjects complete the bill.

Virginia Warren

"OH, YEAH!" IT'S GOOD

ROBERT ARMSTRONG and James Gleason play the leading role in Pathe's all-dialogue comedy "Oh, Yeah!" now at the Park as the feature of a double bill.

Armstrong and Gleason are just as funny in the humorous sequences and just as effective in the dramatic phases of "Oh, Yeah!" as they were on the stage in "Is Zat So?" The production has a good supporting cast with Patricia Caron, in the chief feminine romantic role and Zana Pitts supplying more of her wonderful droll humour.

Others in the cast are Paul Hurst, Frank Hagney, Tom Shirley, Rud Fine, Chuck Hamilton and Eddie Baker.

Two for Nolan

"Carnival" and "What Men Want" are two new vehicles being prepared for Mary Nolan for Universal.

KEITH-ALBEE PROGRAM TOPPING

AT the Keith-Albee this week, R. K. O.'s "Good Time" Jubilee is in full swing with both vaudeville headliners and first rate talking picture entertainment. Two big stars head the stage show. First, the jolly and portly Larry Rich, whose resemblance to Paul Whiteman is remarkable. He presents a big peppy revue which he titles "Larry Rich and His Friends." Among the "friends" are Gladys Hart, Evelyn Spencer, Bernie Rich and a hot stage orchestra. Fast dancing, new songs and snappy dance music by the orchestra, led by Larry himself, make up the routine of the revue.

Warner Baxter

And then comes that cyclonic Lulu McConnell. She presents a hilarious comedy called "A Quiet Game," written by Ellis O. Jones Oh, scream is as all-talking drama with music, called "Romance of Rio Grande," with a cast headed by Warner Baxter, whose real hit was as the hillbilly hero of "In Old Arizona."

FUN RUNS RIOT IN McLAGLEN PICTURE

AN uproariously funny film, filled with laughs, is "Hot for Paris," feature picture at the New B. F. Keith's this week. It is amusing from beginning to end and it presents an array of humorous talent that would be hard to beat. Victor McLaglen, that tough hero of the screen who made such an unprecedented hit in the "Cock-Eyed World," is again being seen and heard in this screamingly mirthful production. El Brendel, the Swedish laugh-provoker, is another of the stars and he would be hard to equal as a comedian.

Constructed much along the same lines as "The Cock-Eyed World," giving McLaglen the same opportunities to display his vigorous personality, "Hot for Paris might be called a sequel to "The Cock-Eyed World."

The chief feminine portion of the cast is Fifi Dorsay who is the reason why McLaglen and Brendel go through a series of humorous difficulties to win her heart and hand. Miss Dorsay is on her way to screen stardom.

Several catchy songs are contributed. The supporting cast includes Eddie Dillon, Lennot Pawle, Dorothea Tolliatis, George Fawcett, Charles Judels and many others.

FARE, NOT FEAR HAS HAMPERED AIR TRAVEL

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The discovery by the Aviation Corporation as to where the letter "E" should be placed in the word describing the retarding influence on air travel, fixing the fare between Boston and New York tumbling again, for its second reduction in the past few months, so that now you may fly between the cities for $17.43, a reduction of $6.96 over the old low price.

This letter "E" figures in this reduction, because after much pondering, the aviation outfit came to the conclusion that it wasn't fear that kept people from riding in larger numbers over its lines, but fare.

When the fare on the Boston-New York run was dropped from its original figure of $34.85 to a price about seven dollars less, the traffic over the line increased to a noticeable degree. These changes in the fare also brought more confidence to the line.

MACKIE BLAMED

But confidence was nearly ruined when the former division superintendent on this end of the line, Richard W. Mackie, looped a trimotine used on the run, over the heart of Boston some weeks ago.

We heard many comments on this stunt, the jist of which seemed to be a question in the minds of the people who saw the stunts being performed and others who were told about them, that passengers were liable to be looped or whatnot on the way to and from New York. We did our best to correct this feeling, as did the other papers of Boston, for this new discovery of the Aviation Corp. that the letter "E" belongs in fare means more to the well-being of commercial aviation than anything else done so far.

This reduction practically cuts the fare to New York in half over the original price charged, and brings the fare for this fastest system of travel between Beantown and Gotham almost down to that of the fastest train. And then the saving of a couple of hours or so to the average business man is well worth the five or six dollars over the train rate.

Other reductions noted on the Aviation Corp.'s system of air lines shows that the fare on the Universal air transport between New York and Los Angeles reduced $67.46, making the fare $196.05, as compared to the previous rate of $223.51. The trip from Cleveland to Garden City will cost $59.70, compared to the former rate of $127.23.

Airplane operating companies around Boston today greeted the fare reductions by the Aviation Corporation with cheers, and declared the reductions show the soundness of the flying business as a whole, and that the fare is at last where the public at large is beginning to forget its unfounded fear of the air, and consider the cost in cents value of using airplanes to go place in a hurry.

COURSES POPULAR

This ground school racket seems to be catching on and going like a prairie, if we may use the term. Anyways, Inc's., new class, which begins tonight in the classroom over at the Boston airport, which was announced some weeks ago, while the first class was still going on, and the response was immediate.

[illegible] week ago there were 19 [illegible] in the class, and when Sheldon Ay night came every one of these were filled, showing the intense interest in the ground work of flying around Boston.

Charles-Wright is still packing 'em in with its ground courses, and as we wrote Saturday, Dennison is also having full houses at their schools.

Urges Highbrow Rum Buyers Be Arrested

Detroit, Jan. 20 (AP) Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas would jail "highbrows" who "drink to show off," he said:

"You often buyers are persons of business position and social standing, using the exemption accorded them by the law as an excuse to make its moral infraction. We need to make but a few examples of the highbrows who think they are above the law which governs bumbler folks in order to smash the bottom out of the bootleg racket and reduce the illegal liquor traffic to the disappearing point."

Sunday Dances Land Managers in Court

New York, Jan. 20 (INS)—Three New York theaters were invaded by police last night and their managers were to appear in court today, charged with permitting dancing on Sunday.

Everyone seemed surprised when it was learned later the raids were brought by the Sabbath Day Committee, which charged there is a city law every one else had forgotten, banning Sunday dancing.

MIRACLES WORK OF GOD, PRIEST DECLARES

"If you deny the possibility of miracles you must logically deny God's supreme dominion over the world. He has created," declared the Rev. Joseph L. McManus, S. J., professor of philosophy at Weston College, during his talk on "Miracles" broadcast during the Catholic Truth period over WNAC.

"You predicate a contradiction of God when you deny Him as a law-giver and a violator of His own laws" Fr. McManus continued. "For you are equivalently by that having created the universe He is constantly repairing its defects by miraculous intervention."

"A miracle is an event which falls under the observation of our senses, which has God for its cause, which transcends the ordinary course of created nature. Three elements therefore must be combined to constitute a miracle, a sensible character, a divine cause and an extraordinary relation to the normal operation of nature. It must be an event which can be grasped by our senses, which can be perceived by our normal processes of observation.

"CAUSED BY GOD"

"The second requisite is that the event must be caused by God. The power which is ultimately responsible for a miraculous event is always the omnipotent divine power, and any created agencies which may be involved are but the channels of this divine power. It is an event which cannot be explained by natural causes. This extraordinary relation may vary in different miracles. The forces of nature may be directly contrary to the miraculous event. Briefly, a miracle transcends nature when it can be explained only by the special intervention of nature's divine ruler," he continued.

"God can work a miracle He is the creator and supreme, infinitely powerful master of the universe. There is no force in nature which is not derived primarily from Him. There is no law of nature which is not the expression of His supreme wisdom. There is no law of nature which can be operated independability of His power.

HOW IT IS PROVED

"Can we be certain that a miracle has taken place Can we be certain that the extraordinary event occurred? Can we be certain that God's cause is cause? The event itself is perceptible. It can be grasped by the senses. That was the first point mentioned in the definition of a miracle. Therefore it can be known by personal observation through the testimony of witnesses. In the latter case, more evidence is required of our knowledge we apply the same tests which we apply to all other testimony. Have the witnesses knowledge of the event? Are they telling the truth? As an unusual event a miracle is calculated to arouse curiosity. The very fact that such an event is extraordinary makes it easily known. Having established the fact that the witnesses were in a position to know it, we determine their truthfulness as we determine the truthfulness of any other witness."

Too Much ACID

Many people two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick harmless, efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 80 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in a little water neutralizes many times its volume of stomach acids and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method and you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist

Milk of Magnesia has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

The Great Indoor Sport of Bridge!

It has filled me with vexation—exultation—desperation! Such a fascinating game! You can't live without it, and be "accepted" any more. You can't live with it, unless you know its every trick. I confess I'm a dismal failure—or rather—was a dismal failure at bridge, until last week, when I started taking lessons at Filene's, under the direction of Mrs. Prescott Warren—the famous Bridge expert, and now I'm to challenge anyone—even you, Anne! Mrs. Warren is a marvelous instructress, and will be in Filene's all next week, teaching by appointment at a fee of $6 a table, and answering, free of charge, all questions and problems that might arise in your little bridge club. Filene's has turned a section of their Gift Shop into an immense Bridge Party for this event and you will get some wonderful ideas for entertaining. They have bridge tables ranging in price from $1.85 to $25, bridge chairs at $6 each. I saw a particularly smart set in lacquer red for $36 complete. A wonderful assortment of playing cards from 25 cents to $5 each—includes modernistic designs, old fashioned samplers and Godey's. They have scoring cards, so convenient to hold are 65 cents, and there are many novelty prizes for bridge tallying. Unusual table sets are 90 cents to $2, and tally and place cards at 2 cents to 5 cents each. If you are a Bridge Fan, don't miss this treat all this week in the Balcony of Filene's Gift Shop on Franklin St.

SCARLET fever usually begins suddenly with a high fever, sore throat and vomiting. The rash appears within twenty-four hours, as a rule is of reddish color, and first is seen on the neck and chest. Scarletina is a milder form and is seldom dangerous in children.

PROTECT BEAUTY OF COMPLEXION IN WINTER

Simple Remedies Best for Dry Skin, Says Expert

By MARIA JERITZA

AT this time of year letters pour in asking me how to protect the complexion against winter winds and cold and correct havoc already wrought by unwise beauty measures.

A letter on my desk this morning from "Rose" is typical.

"My skin is very dry and sensitive," writes Rose. "I have spent oodles and oodles of money on lotions, creams, facials, violatray treatments, etc., to correct defects, but nothing has aided.

Maria Jeritza

"I have open pores and am subject to blackheads. I believe my skin is naturally a good one, if I had only let it alone, because my body is as beautiful as a baby's and proper treatment may possibly bring about good results. If you will help me, I will never be able to express my gratitude."

I will gladly help you, Rose, and the suggestions I intend to make are so simple you will be surprised, yet for that very reason I believe you will find them more efficacious.

In the first place, give your skin a good rest from complicated cosmetics. Get back to the simplicity of nature in your beauty quest.

Makeup is being less obviously used this season than formerly. You will find that many women of fashion have given up the use of rouge in the daytime, save possibly a dash of lip rouge. And even lip rouge should be used sparingly when the skin is naturally dry, else the lips are likely to crack and wrinkle, for both powder and rouges are drying in effect.

I doubt whether there is a healthy complexion in the world that will suffer from wise use of warm soap suds, made from pure Castile soap, followed with rinse with clean, cold, softened water. If you have makeup on your face remove it at night with cleansing cold cream. Next scrub your face, ears and neck with a clean Turkish washcloth as thoroughly and gently as you would wash a delicate piece of china or cut glass.

When the last trace of grime has disappeared fill the wash bowl with clean cold water. In case the water is hard soften it with a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda. With the palms of your hands dash this cold water over your face, neck and ears, giving them a second and third rinse if necessary.

Finally, dry them carefully, and apply a two-inch square of absorbent cotton dipped in pure olive oil to every nook and corner of your face and neck. Olive oil is the blandest and most soothing of all cleansers and softeners of the skin and can be used freely. If you like, add a few drops of your favorite perfume from time to time to your olive oil, which can be kept in a dainty glass bottle. Remove excess of oil except a thin film, which will sink into your skin overnight.

In the morning wash your face with warm then softened cold water, and if your skin seems very dry pat it, but the least particle of olive oil on your fingertips. But ordinarily, enough oil remains in the skin overnight to keep it moistened, and in the morning use of water is quite enough to invigorate and firm the pores and act as a powder base. Use a mild powder that matches your skin and apply it on a clean puff.

Every day drink a tablespoonful of olive oil, or else take it in the form of French dressing on your salad. You will find, I am sure, that a month of the regime I have suggested will bring about a wonderful improvement in your complexion, if it is of the type usually described as dry and sensitive. And the best feature of the olive oil and soap and water beauty regime is that it is absolutely harmless.

What It Costs One When Sickness Arrives

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.,
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

TO be sick is an expensive matter, as those who have been ill so well know. Doctors, nurses, hospital rooms, operations, medicines, not to mention the economic loss due to incapacity to work, cost money.

It has been estimated that the total average cost of sickness in the United States each year amounts to over two billion dollars. And this by the way amounts to 3½ per cent of the income of the entire country.

Two per cent of all the people are sick enough to need some kind of medical care all of the time.

For this there are employed 150,000 physicians, 50,000 dentists, 140,000 trained nurses, 150,000 "practical" nurses, plus 190,000 other employes who act as orderlies, medical stenographers, office assistants, etc.

These figures are given by Dr. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

He concludes from statistics made by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and other studies that the average amount spent for sickness per year is about $50 per family.

Now $50 doesn't seem such a large amount for the average American family to spend, yet how many such families are ready to meet such an expense when the time comes?

In other words, few people really think about illness until it actually overwhelms them. Then, only, do they seek help.

To be sure, there are many hospital clinics available nowadays, most of them free, and there is no reason whatever why even the poorest cannot obtain the very best medical service. There are clinics where the medicines as well as the services of the physician and nurse are given for nothing to those who cannot pay.

The matter of actual money expense is not the worst of it, really, for even private physicians are willing to cooperate within their means in the matter of fees, and specialists often make reductions for persons who for some reason or other do not want to attend a free clinic.

The worst feature of the cost of illness is the terrifying physical and mental effects that it often entails.

How often one hears a patient remark, after recovering from an illness, that he would rather have his health than a million.

Yes that is about the way we all feel after suffering an acute sickness or when in the clutches of a chronic, devitalizing disease. But so few realize it this beforehand. So few are careful about preserving their health and strength. So many are almost criminally careless about the way they abuse their bodies and minds and court all sorts of dangerous diseases.

The concept of man has a lot to do with his scoffing attitude toward prevention of diseases and hygiene in general.

Somehow the average man and woman deludes himself with the notion that he can't get sick. He becomes defiant. Sometimes he boasts about never having consulted a doctor. And sometimes, too, while he is admitting his derision of the rules of health and of those who preach them, a slow ly-progressive, insidious disease is gradually developing which some day will claim him before his time.

It is costly to be sick no matter which way you look at it thing else," she told herself, when Tom had gone back to work and she was in the kitchen scraping carrots for supper.

Late that night when she went into the room to turn down the covers and lay out the nightclothes, she stood looking at her plain muslin gown for a long time.

"I'll buy some silk ones as soon as Tom gets this money that's coming to him," she made up her mind—"and some French perfume."

She would find out what kind Alma Alderson used. It had a spicy smell like clove carnations. And what kind of face powder did she use to give her skin that pearly look?

"I'll find out and get some of that, too," Lovejoy promised herself.

Tom came in, yawning. And together they tiptoed into the baby's room to see if he was covered.

She crossed the room to lower the window. Through it came the faint sound of music from the Alderson's big house on the next street. All of the windows of the first floor were glowing with the light within.

"They're having a card party, I suppose," Lovejoy said when she was brushing her hair a little later. Her voice was wistful. She did love a good time.

Tom, do hurry up and make lots of money," she added, suddenly turning away from the mirror and facing him. "I can't wait to have a lovely house and a load of friends . . . and card parties and things . . . Tom, I just want everything!"

Tom looked at her thoughtfully for a moment before he answered.

"You wouldn't trade places with our neighbors, would you?" he asked.

"You'd rather be poor, the way we are, and have the baby, wouldn't you, than be the Aldersons?"

"I'd rather be ourselves than be anybody," Lovejoy declared passionately. "And if we just get hold of some money and make some friends and have some fun, I'll be the happiest woman in the world."

Tom kept his eyes on his book but Lovejoy noticed that he did not turn a page for a long time. She wondered if she had hurt him by saying that.

He's perfectly happy without any friends and without any money," she thought. "He wants just one thing in it besides just work and a family."

Life ought to be so wonderful . . .

Early next morning, while Lovejoy was doing the breakfast dishes, Mrs. Alderson came running up the front steps and knocked on the glass pane of the back door.

Her face and hair and her fur coat were powdered with rain drops. She was breathless from her run, and she looked excited.

"A long distance call just came in over at my house for me," she said, dropping down on the chair beside the kitchen door and leaning back her wet coat, "and I told the telephone operator to switch it over here to your telephone. Do you mind?"

Lovejoy shook her head in his gold-copper hair.

"Of course not," she said, plunging her hands back into the dishwater.

Our telephone is out of order, her neighbor explained. "I could hardly hear Central . . . . By the way, has your husband told you about all the bonds he sold my husband yesterday?"

Lovejoy nodded. "Yes . . . and were both so grateful to him," she said heartily. "It means some extra money for us and we surely can use it."

"Be grateful to me, instead," Mrs. Alderson cried. "I think it was thinking of buying some bonds and I asked him to get them from your husband. I had an idea you needed all the money you could get, with your new baby, and so on."

Once more Lovejoy nodded, her bright head . . . But she said nothing. That hurt her feelings to be told that she and Tom were poor.

And yet any one with half an eye could see how poor they were.

"There's my call!" Mrs. Alderson's voice shook with excitement as she jumped up and ran to answer the 'phone.

She closed the kitchen door behind her. Then, a moment later, Lovejoy heard her close the door of the dining-room.

She was safe of the little house were thin, and she could not help hearing every word that Mrs. Alderson said.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAVE you met that big, warm, laughing creature the Gullah negroes on Blue Brook Plantation called "Si Mav-e"?

You will find her in Julia Peterkin's new book, "Scarlet Sister Mary." And when you have found her you will forget that she is made of words, for Si Mav-e herself, straight, and strong, and fine with life, will march before you, her black eyes wistful and rebellious and her big head fierce, straight brown.

Elsie Robinson

Si Mav-e was a "great sinner" the other negroes said. But what sin was there to loving? said Si Mav-e twenty years in a row on the Springtime sap . . . without conscious purpose or plan . . . and she came to her harvest as surely as the corn fields she tended. One man she loved . . . the rest loved her. And with the passing of the years children thickened about her stricken knees.

But sorrow thickened, too. It began with Billy Joe, her first and mother of 16, to go to Cinder, that wicked, skinny little vixen Si Mav-e hated for Billy and hated Cinder until the flesh hung in rags on her young bones. She could not understand how Billy could hurt her so when she had given so greatly to love.

Then Samuel Hannah told her the sad story of Maum Hannah who had lived long and seen many waters go under the bridge. She told her how all love is not the same . . . how some love walks with pain . . . but how, no matter what the pain, real love is worth having.

"Dey is two diffunt kinds of love, Si Mav-e," says Maum Hannah. "Two eye-love an' heart-love. Eye-love is tricky. It will fool you. It done fool plenty of people. Two people'll meet an' link dey have love. It seems so. De woman look good to de man; de man look good to de woman. Evy time dey meet dey talk pleasant talk. Den dey gone an' married togedder. But, soon all'swell wid 'em Gawd de Jedge never see one annidder.

"Heart-love is diffunt. Diffunt from eye-love as day is from night. Sometimes you walk long wid one but E go much wid sorrow. Heart-love and sorrow is one muddera children. When you meets wid heart-love, peace'll leave you. But heart-love is brave. E kin pure smile in de face o' death, honey. E pure shames death."

But it was worth it, Si Mav-e said, Maum Hannah said. Worth it all because it made life better. Peace might go and hatred Cinder until the flesh hung in rags on her young bones. She could not understand how Billy could hurt her so when she had given so greatly to love.

Then Samuel Hannah told her the sad story of Maum Hannah who had lived long and seen many sorrow . . . "big sad sorrow." Nothing to be had without a price, and, since love is the greatest thing in life, it costs most of all. Weariness and worry . . . sorrow, shame and sacrifice . . . dreary, drudging service . . . and then, perhaps, at the end—loss. A Judy gone with a Cinder. Or a little son lifted in shame to God. Eye-love cannot stand these strains; heart-love can. Heart-love go wid sorrow. But it was worth it, Si Mav-e said, Maum Hannah said. Worth it all because it made life better. Peace might go and hatred Cinder, but courage was born instead . . . courage that could smile in the face of shame and loss in the face of death itself.

It was worth anything that was the last of her story.

Could your love stand that test?

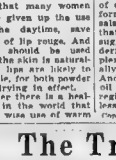
The Truth

ABOUT A SLOVENLY APPEARANCE.

By ELINOR GLYN.

I HAVE just received a letter from a girl which is almost similar in tone to the complaint from the young man.



Elinor Glyn.

She has been married eighteen months to a "boy" she had been tremendously in love with.

She had known him for six months before the marriage and he seemed almost perfection. She had however, noticed toward the end of the engagement that just once or twice when he came to take her out to lunch or did not look very well shaved, or as smartly groomed as he used to look in the beginning.

Now, she writes, that his slovenliness has destroyed her love for him. He seemed to let himself go before the end of the honeymoon, and at first she was too timid to say anything about it, and then found it very difficult to broach the subject.

So it had gone on, he taking for granted that she would put up with it, until she had an outburst one day, and found when she had put her feelings into words that she felt only disgust for him.

He has resented her outburst exceedingly, and now they constantly quarrel. But now that the feeling is once in her mind for some one she asks, had she not better seek a divorce?

I should say yes, unless she feels that by making a simple explanation and showing him how dependent how he looks, and by little personal habits, she could get him to change his ways.

Then they might begin again. But I must talk more about this subject.

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

THROUGHOUT the world we can find many cities which have lived down through the ages since antiquity, but none has quite the flavor of Athens—the center of Greek culture and civilization. To the average person, Athens stands for all that was fine and wonderful in antiquity. Let us visit it today.

Athens is fortunate. Its monuments — monuments to its old glory—are so situated that they still dominate the scene. The Acropolis still towers over the city—as it did of old. Within recent years, however, it has taken on a new aspect. For years and years, its slopes were bare, barren ground and the temples were viewed it were set in the center of an open area where the sun beat down mercilessly. Around the Acropolis have been planted great groves of pine trees and it is planned to set out even more of them. Although these are not the trees of ancient Greece, they are verdure, and they relieve effectively the barrenness.

Modern Athens is growing and developing at a prodigious rate. New buildings seem to sprout overnight. Many of these new buildings were built by civic-minded philanthropists and presented to the city. The city is also doing much to uncover and preserve the ruins of its old civilization, although this work has been postponed long that many valuable antiquities have been removed by foreign collectors.

The edges of Athens are "scrubby." The poorer classes live in these suburbs. But despite the fact that they are poor, their homes, glimpsed from the streets as one walks along, are quiet and calm. There is none of the tumult, the arguing and noise which one generally associates with the poor er sections of a city. There are no wild children dashing at one's legs, no screaming mothers. The "slums" atmosphere is not there.

In fact, all the people of Athens appear remarkably sedate. Even the children impress one with their seriousness, their air of learning, the way they greet and treat strangers. They appear less like children than they do like diminutive adults.

Although European dress is the rule in Athens, occasionally a countryman will come to town and wander the streets. He adds a bright touch of color with his embroidered jacket, knee-length trousers, wool stockings, tasseled slippers, and caps.

Order of Bridal Party

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Please advise me in what order the principals of a wedding enter the church? These are the members of the wedding party: Best man, four ushers, ring-bearer, father of the bride, maid of honor, six bridesmaids and two flower girls.

2. Is the one who rings to come before the piece also with the organist?

3. Is it necessary to have ushers besides the ones who act as such?

4. Does the latter part of the processional? A. F. L.

1. The processional should walk as follows

d Two bridesmaids walking together, the tallest.

e. Ring-bearer walking alone.

f Maid of honor walking alone.

g Flower girls walking together.

h Bride walking with her father.

2. The soloist takes her place in the choir before the guests begin to assemble. She can't send the organist have nothing to do with the processional for they are in the choir before it begins.

3. The ushers first show the guests to their places and then take part in the processional. There are not two sets of ushers.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I have been corresponding with a young man for some time, but he has never been to my home. Should I ask him to come some Sunday afternoon or should he ask for the privilege? Under the circumstances, it is impossible to entertain a formal informal gathering at my home. M. G.

EITHER is correct for you to offer him the hospitality of your home, and invite him to come to see you on some Sunday after noon (to tea perhaps), or for him to ask you if he may come. After all, that is what our homes are for, to extend their hospitality to our friends.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

Is it proper for a young man to tip his hat to a young lady who is on the other side of the street? State st. R. C. B.

Yes. If the young lady bows to him, he should, of course, take off his hat in recognition of her greeting.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Suppose that my name is Katherine Esterbrook and that I marry a man named Williams. How shall I sign my name in thanking people especially those I do not know, for wedding presents? Shall I . . . Katherine Esterbrook Williams, or Katherine Williams?

READER

IF THE wedding presents are received before you are married you of course sign your mother's name. And all wedding presents received before the wedding should be thanked for before the wedding. But if the presents are received after the wedding, you sign your thank-you notes with either form of your name that is Katherine Esterbrook Williams, for this form registers both the maiden name and the last name of the married woman.

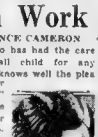
Plan Work and Play for Your Child

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

ANYONE who has had the care of a small child for any length of time knows well the plea of "Me too," or "Let me help," when we are busy on our round of household duties. Children like to do what we do and if we but think for a few moments and plan that they may have an activity like ours, it solves the "what-to-do" problem of the toddler in both an educational and happy manner.



Constance Cameron

If you consider the season of the year it will help you in planning work and play for your very small person. And in allowing the child to imitate your duties, you not only have the opportunity of keeping him busy, but there are many chances to impress upon him lessons which he would not yet grasp in the abstract.

This is the fall season, and besides having abundant opportunities for happy occupations, there is the occasion to make the child more fully aware of the unity of the family. For in winter time we spend more time as a family than during the summer months when the sisters and brothers and mother and father scatter to camps and vacation resorts.

Ask your small child what is going on in the home in preparation for winter. Why did you can fruit during the summer? Why did the coal man shoot black stuff through the cellar window? Why are you taking the heavy blankets out of their moth-proof bags and airing them on the line? Why did the two of you go shopping for a warm little coat?

To prepare for winter, of course. To be ready when the snow and cold days come.

While all this is prosaic to you, it is interesting to a child, and will mean more than mere words to him. It will mean a feeling of readiness, preparation, unity, all the family working together to have a warm, comfortable home for winter.

Even a very small child can cut warm blankets for his doll from pieces of outing flannel. They need not be exact unless the child is old enough to do so. Winter shoes for the dolls are easily made from the fingers of old kid gloves. Cut off the tips to fit dolly's foot and slit down a short way for the opening.

Children always love to make mittens for themselves and dolls. Let the child lay his hand flat on a stiff piece of paper and draw around it. Cut this out and use for a pattern. You need not buy new cloth for this activity. An old woolen dress which is clean and pressed flat will make many pairs of mittens. Or cutting flannel is good and very cheap. A few yards for these fall activities will be of help to you.

In this preparation for winter don't forget to let your child realize the interdependence of all of us, by reminding him of the labors of the farmers, and the coal miners, the mill workers, and so on.

BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

A certain jewelry salesman was very fond of honey and the proprietor of the hotel at which he stopped in the Middle West always knew that he had honey at every meal.

On one trip this salesman took along his new bride and he stopped at the hotel.

When they were seated at the table that evening, no honey could be seen by the salesman, so as the waiter approached he said in a stage whisper, "Say, buddy, where's my honey?"

The waiter replied, with a smile, "Oh, you mean the little blonde well she don't work here now."

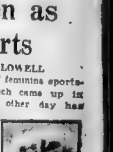
Women as Sports

By LUCY LOWELL

THE question of feminine sportsmanship which came up in this column the other day has stirred considerable controversy among the readers who think after all wrong in my opinion. And my opinion, after all, was not very far off that. I said merely that I was inclined to be on no better sports than men and no worse.



Lucy Lowell

And now I am charged with being a "male feminist" among other things because I who takes exception to my idea being a Holyoke, Bean, lady. She writes, in part:

"DEAR LUCY LOWELL.

"The most striking evidence of lack of good sportsmanship among women is the antagonism some of them show toward each other, and which is the last thing I would have that I consider this antagonism the keynote of the article you printed.

It may be that some of us don't carry off the grand gesture men pride themselves on, but that is because most of us are more sincere than men.

Women are likely to mean what they say, and when they say they mean even if it does hurt feelings. But it takes courage to do this.

It is not the mere habit of being thought poor sports that they will agree to almost any unfairness just to avoid what we will say, 'He's a good fellow—he's a good sport.'

It is a question of women being sincere and men only pretending. I hope I haven't hurt your feelings, but I am a woman a woman, and don't care who knows it.

"MRS EVA B."

No, lady, you haven't hurt my feelings. You see, I had the notion that sincerity entered into the quality of sportsmanship. It was not the gesture I considered, but the act.

However, I stick to my story; that it's a 50-50 break. I believe some women are as good sports and some are not—and that some men are good sports and some are not.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale declares there is no real conflict between his optimistic statements on stock market and business recovery and his warning of future depression. He says: "While threat of 'gold famine' is serious, and may follow historic precedent in lasting many years, it is well within power of American and transatlantic governments concerned to prevent it. In fact, central banks of the world, including our own Federal Reserve system, have already taken notable steps in prevention, and more may follow."

George B. Canty, motion picture trade commissioner for the purpose of U. S. Department of Commerce, says that because if increasing popularity of sound productions and protracted Franco-American film quota controversy, French film industry has reached modern level in more than a decade. Its production of feature films last year exceeded 75 per cent of 1928 figures, while its total cinema consumption fell 25 per cent. American supply declined 32 per cent but Germany continues its steady increase. American firms sold 211 feature pictures in 1929 against 388 in peak year, 1924. Americans still claim 48 per cent of market; Germany is a poor second with 29 per cent.

Trade Improving Since Beginning of This Year

How Dillon Won Partnership; Whelan Stock Tactics; Texan's Rebuke

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Hubert Parson, president of Woolworth's tells me that their 1930 business "has started out very well, showing a nice increase in sales so far." If this typifies the state of retail trade throughout the country, it is important and encouraging.

Clarence Dillon, banker, who this year will be in charge of Harvard's varsity football team, is the young man who got his daddy to agree to foot the bill for a swell locker building to take the place of Harvard's historic Soldier's Field locker building, destroyed by fire. Douglas Dillon has exhibited one quality big men prize highly in their offspring: leadership. When our foremost corporations raid the universities each June for the most promising material, they don't rate either scholarship or athletic ability first; they want young men who have proved capable leaders, fellows who can inspire loyal teamwork.

How Clarence Dillon first won an important Wall Street commitment is interesting. A very rich man was recommended to try doing some business with Dillon, then a cub bond salesman. The multimillionaire was astounded when the young man didn't try to sell him something at their first meeting. He refused to suggest a single security, explaining that he couldn't give intelligent counsel until he had first made a complete study of the securities the gentleman already owned and was given a clear understanding of what his prospect wanted to accomplish through his investments.

The prospect, accustomed to importuning by bond salesmen, took young Dillon completely into his confidence—and almost immediately became the firm's largest customer.

That was in Chicago. William A. Read, head of the firm, brought Dillon to New York, and in time the latter signed his name at the foot of the list of partners, Mr. Read remarked that some day the name would be at the top of the list. And it got there in a few years.

Bill MacIntosh, publisher of the San Antonio Light, the leading evening newspaper in the biggest city in Texas, while in New York this week expressed impatience with all the pessimistic talk in Wall Street and elsewhere in the metropolis. "The stock crash has made no difference to our part of the country," he told me. "We are going about our business the same as usual. More building will be done this year than ever before, by a good margin. So many wonderful buildings have been put up since you were there two years ago that you wouldn't know the city. Come and see for yourself." I hope to, before the year is over.

Nothing sensational developed at the annual bank meetings held this week. No gigantic new mergers were announced—but some will be by and by. In New York the outstanding feature was the record-breaking profits reported by Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, the largest in the land. Nearly every bank president expressed confidence in early revival of prosperity.

Prosperity Talk by Foster Coming

"The Road to Permanent Prosperity" will be discussed on the Haley, Stuart & Co. radio program on Wednesday, January 22, it was announced today. Dr. Foster, who is a well-known economist and director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, will have some interesting observations to make based on his own study of economic trends. The purpose of the foundation which he heads is to study the means whereby the economic activities of the world may be so directed, and the products so distributed, as to yield to the people generally the largest possible satisfactions.

Dr. Foster is active in both economic and general educational fields. He was president of Reed College from 1910 until 1920, becoming head of the foundation when it was established in that year. The foundation has published a number of books, including "Money," "Profits," "Business Without a Buyer," and "The Road to Plenty," by Dr. Foster in association with Waddill Catchin, v; "The Making of Index Numbers," by Irving Fisher, and "The Problem of Business Forecasting," by Warren M. Persons.

Employment Gains

Fifty-one major plants in Toledo, mainly automotive, reported 24,013 workers in the week ended January 17, an increase of 582 over the preceding week.

BOND MARKET PRICES FIRM AND NARROW

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Bond prices were firm today in a slow market. High grade domestic issues showed a tendency to improve, but the gains were small. Foreign loans, where conspicuous strength developed last week, got fair support.

The railroad group shared prominence in the early trading with the utilities. Nickel Plate 1st 4s, Wisconsin Central general 4s, Atchison general 4s, Pennsylvania gold 4s, Missouri, Kansas, Texas, prior lien 5s, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis 5s and numerous others reported odd-to-investment buying in the transportation issues, while power and light and telephone bonds found slightly higher levels.

Activity centered in Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s, American Telephone 5s and Montana Power 5s. Utility companies are expected to do a heavy volume of refinancing this year in connection with their expansion programs, and much of this may come out doubtless be raised through bond issues.

Industrials were steady, with few noticeable changes, although Lorillard 5s rose nearly two points.

Conditions turned over listlessly and fluctuations as a rule were fractional. United States Government bonds were dull.

There was small buying of a few prominent European obligations and prices tended higher.

BOND-TITLE IN MERGER PACT

New York, Jan. 20—The Mortgage-Bond & Title Corporation announced today that arrangements have been completed to acquire the mortgage business of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., which was formerly conducted by the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., until its recent merger with the Chemical Bank & Trust Co.

Under the terms of the transaction the Mortgage-Bond & Title Corporation, through its subsidiary The Mortgage-Bond & Title Co. of New York, will take over the management of more than $12,000,000 of mortgages and properties located in 62 cities of the United States.

The Chemical Bank & Trust Company of New York, as part of the transaction, will acquire a minority interest in The Mortgage-Bond & Title Corporation through the purchase of a block of new stock.

Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank & Trust Company, will become a director of The Mortgage-Bond & Title Corporation, which will have, at the completion of this transaction, capital funds in excess of $7,000,000 and the control of approximately $50,000,000 of mortgages in 100 cities throughout the country.

The Mortgage-Bond & Title Corporation was formed last year as a holding company for The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York, which was founded in 1905 as The Maryland Mortgage & National Title Company of Baltimore. Charles B. Gillet of Baltimore is chairman of the corporation, having been elected recently to succeed the late George A. Hurd.

Polish Bank Plans to Raise Dividend

The board of directors of the Bank of Poland will recommend to stockholders at the annual meeting to be held on February 13th that a dividend of 20 per cent be paid on the bank's stock for 1929, it was announced yesterday by the American Polish Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The announcement comes as a surprise to financial circles both in Poland and the United States.

The Bank of Poland divided for 1928 was 8 per cent. The additional 4 per cent for 1929 thus represents an increase for 1929 of 20 per cent. The last quotation received here on Bank of Poland stock was 175 zlotys for the 100-zloty shares, one zloty equaling 11.22 cents.

Neet, Inc., Reports Gain in Earnings

Neet, Inc., reports for the calendar year 1929 net profit of $368,653 after all expenses and income taxes, as compared with $174,698 for 1928, an increase of 111 per cent. Last year's earnings were equivalent to $6.14 on the cumulative convertible Class A stock, or more than 3½ times the annual dividend requirements of $1.60 a share.

After providing for payment of Class A dividends, earnings were at the rate of $3.02 a share on the 90,000 shares of Class B stock outstanding.

Steel Operations Will Re Increased

Youngstown, O., Jan. 20—The Newton Steel Co., making auto and furniture sheets, will advance operations to 75 per cent from 70 per cent.

Industrial operations here this week will average 70 per cent, an increase over current operations of 67 per cent, due chiefly to increase in orders for auto steel and improvements in pipe business.

Operations of Republic Iron & Steel Co. will be increased to 70 per cent from 67 per cent.

Good Year for Bank Business Foreseen by Brookmire

Banks should continue to show an upward trend in earnings in 1930, according to an analysis of New York bank stocks in the latest business bulletin of the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc. Mergers will make possible lower unit costs, the analysis says, and increased concentration of deposits should increase net, inasmuch as the spread between gross interest charged commercial customers and gross interest paid on deposits should widen slightly. The analysis points out that examination of the recent bank reports in the light of business as de'cits in leading banks in the crucial fourth quarter, declines are insignificant when considered in the light of panic conditions of two months ago. The analysis adds that the statements are indicative of the sound position of our leading banks and we can look forward with confidence in the light of what has been disclosed.

EXPECT RECORD BUILDING

Washington, Jan. 20—Conclusive evidence that 1930 is to be a banner construction year has just been gathered by the Associated General Contractors of America for presentation at the convention of that organization in New Orleans Jan. 27.

This evidence, which constitutes the first statistical indication that the efforts of the national business survey conferences are bearing fruit, reveals that the volume of state and municipal bond issues floated during the past month have increased by more than 220 per cent as compared with the volume of similar bond issues sold in the preceding month.

At no time has there ever appeared so high a percentage of increase. Only once in history have bond issues for one month exceeded this volume and that was during the month of December, 1921, when bonds of this kind were sold to a total of $137,000,000. The large bond issue for that month were followed by the great post war construction boom of 1922 and subsequent years.

Although the data on the total bond issues for the past month have complete and will go much higher, statistics of the contractors' association show that $54,377,000 of long term bonds for public works were sold during December, 1929. This total is exceeded by the record $280,000,000 when complete information from all sections of the country is compiled.

This total exceeds by $154,377,000 the average monthly total of sales of this largest bond year on record. It is of such size that it brings up the lagging monthly average for bond issues since 1920 to a level approximately equal to the best years in the past.

Year Book Issued by Cotton Exchange

The New York Cotton Exchange has issued its year book for the 1928-1929 cotton year covering the more important statistics of the world cotton trade and the salient features of the exchange's organization and operations.

Among features added this year are several from the Garside Cotton Service, recently taken over and now conducted by the exchange as the New York Cotton Exchange Service. These added tables cover, among other data, world consumption and carryover of American cotton, world production of all cottons, acreage of foreign cottons and exports from India.

Other tables which have been added include those on grade and staple analysis of the crop, monthly high, low and average prices of middling upland spot cotton in the New York market, and detailed tables on the movement and on stocks of American cotton.

Recognition Planned for Industrialists

Industrialists, as well as men in the shops and factories, will be hereafter publicly recognized for outstanding achievements in industry, under a plan formulated by the officials of the Macdonald Brothers' Engineering Laboratories, Inc., of Massachusetts. A committee composed of leading American industrialists will determine the conditions of the awards.

The purpose of the plan is not only to stimulate industrialists and factory employes to greater individual achievement, but to give credit where credit is due.

MODELS IN ALL PRICE CLASSES ATTRACT

Displaying the greatest variety of automobiles ever exhibited in New England, the 28th annual Boston Automobile Show in Mechanics building is well under way, with thousands of daily visitors.

Chester I. Campbell, show manager, commented today that "nearly all of the 1,700,000 automobile owners in the six New England States seem to be here for the show."

Beauty reigns in this show, although the aspect of general utility is not sacrificed for mere display. The 1930 models surpass anything ever exhibited before, show officials say.

This show is advertised to "fit everybody's pocketbook." It does exactly that, for there are on display models ranging from $500 to $20,000 in sales price.

"And they are all American in make," was the comment of Manager Campbell.

The significant fact to automobile dealers is that this great annual show is held in January rather than in March. As much earlier this year, the show is expected to stimulate business much ahead of the normal trading time.

The most conspicuous phase of the display is the superb development of the eight cylindered cars. Once merely a curiosity, the "eight" is now a well established product and has moved down into the moderately priced field.

A trend toward smaller wheels is also noted, together with devices for greater road visibility, and, therefore, safety. Wide windows seem to have eliminated blind spots.

The "front drive" idea is invading the field this year, and three well known companies have displays on display. Engineers are watching the experiments carefully.

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Founders' Day

How Our High Schools Might Make September 17th a Day to Be Remembered

ANNOUNCEMENT from the City Hall means that the City of Boston's part in the observance of the Tercentenary of the Bay Colony will be carried out with becoming dignity.

The main celebration may be looked for on Founders' Day, September 17th, but the spirit of the tercentenary will also touch and influence the municipal celebration of Evacuation Day, Patriots' Day, Bunker Hill Day, the Fourth of July and Columbus Day.

In former Attorney-General Herbert Parker, a leader of the Massachusetts Bar, Mayor Curley has secured for the Independence Day exercises in Faneuil Hall one of the most eloquent of New England orators.

If suggestions are in order, the Boston Evening American would bring to the attention of Mr. J. Philip O'Connell, Mayor Curley's director of public celebrations, the titles of some of the floats with which the St. Jean Baptiste Society plans to interest the people of Montreal on June 24th, the Canadian pageant taking the name of "Visions of the Past":

Signature of the Marriage Contract. Showing Lambert Closse, Elizabeth Moyen, M. de Maisonneuve, Jeanne Mance, three Jesuits and leading citizens.

Marquis de Tracy Strolls at Quebec. Accompanying escort of pages, lackeys, guards and gentlemen.

Twelfth Night Cake. At a dinner of the Order of Good Cheer at Port Royal.

Ball at the Residence of the Governor - General of New France.

Seigneurs of Canada rendering Fealty and Homage to the Intendant at Quebec.

Journey of a High Official from Quebec to Montreal in Summer.

A Game of Cards on the Drum.

An Old-time Proclamation, with drum accompaniment.

Return from the Midnight Mass at Christmas.

Corn-husking Bee.

Mending Fish Nets at Gaspe.

Communicants Before a Wayside Cross.

The Sanctus in the Home.

Paternal Benediction on New Year's Day.

Boston's Founders' Day celebration might well include a procession of twice as many floats, picturing the arrival of Winthrop and his party, the banishment of Roger Williams, John Eliot [illegible] to the Indians, Anne Hutchinson addressing a meeting of the women of New England, and recalling other scenes and other personages in our early history.

At a meeting of the Headmasters' Association of Boston, early last month, Mr. Robert F. Allen of the East Boston High School suggested high school pageants along this line. With other masters, Mr. Allen undoubtedly would be glad to co-operate with Director O'Connell.

The Mayor, we have no doubt, will be glad to see that substantial awards are made available for such school floats as are deemed most worthy.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Diary of a modern Pepys: A gray, muggy day and the skyscrapers alight before noon, an ever beautiful spectacle. And were it not for profane noises New York would be the most entrancing city in all the world. So walking cater-cornered through the town, hunting for a different place to eat.

And put in at a lunch counter near the Pennsylvania for a beef stew, what with heapings of chili sauce, was the best meal I have had in a fortnight, and so loitering about the great department stores in Greeley Square and riding up and down on escalators.

Home and did on my dinner jacket and with my wife to a dinner with the Joe Moores and to hear an operetta. Then hurried home to hear a broadcast on the radio and read a hair raising mystery tale.

The decline of ostracism is marked in New York of late. Nothing these days puts a person beyond the social pale. Less than 25 years ago a divorced woman faced an acolade of polite sniffs and even a divorced man found friends greeting him with hurried handshakes and "get away" excuses.

So far as can be noticed today there are no restrictions whatever in social contact. At those carefully selected dancing clubs with hand picked memberships one sees the international gold digger, the wasteful living off venerable women and sundry others with purple pasts.

Between acts at the theaters a night club hostess prances up and down the aisles, waving familiarly and chirping to blue blooded enteries in the Social Register. The best tables in the highest priced cafes are often occupied by characters of the half world.

Afternoon teas in big hotels have their daily sprinkling of famous courtesans. Names that flare into thick scandal headlines one day are noted in the society columns the next. Park Avenue hosts invite Broadway to their dinners. New York has one requirement only in social eligibility: Are you talked about?

A famous descriptive travel writer never makes notes. Instead he takes snapshots. When roaming the world for material he carries a camera. A scene that strikes his eye is photographed. When he gets back to his typewriter he has the closeups before him and is able to paint an accurate word picture.

Broadway last season had an entire play acted by two players and it had a lengthy run. The late Jeanne Eagels was preparing to be the lone player in a two-act drama—almost the entire action taking place over the telephone—when she died. The part has been turned over to another emotional actress who will try it out in the spring. The play will begin at 9:30 and last until 10:45 with a 12-minute intermission.

The late Victor Herbert nursed a secret ambition that was never fulfilled. He wanted to write a dramatic operetta, carrying out a tense plot with six characters and no chorus. It was in the making when he passed away.

After a dinner party the other evening a silver haired gentleman of at least 65 picked up a ukulele and with the nimbleness of a collegiate twanged the latest tunes—including "What Is This Thing Called Love?"—which gave everybody a turn. But when a sweet faced lady of about the same age hopped up on a piano top and crooned a very blue ditty—a la Helen Morgan—most of us felt like withered century plants.

One of the magnificent screen lovers, fading in popularity, stood up at a Hollywood dinner party recently and in an alcoholic rage shouted at his bride: "My big mistake was marrying. You killed me with the flappers." They are now in separate establishments.

The trouble with most screen lovers is they think they are Tennyson's brooks—running on forever. Even in my time I have seen—a second for the finger counting—all screen lovers pop out like lights.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE question of professional athletics continues to agitate the reformers. It will end as usual with a huge fleet of rocking chairs sailing forth to battle the problem.

Babe Ruth is holding out for more salary than is grabbed by President Hoover. But then, Babe is in a bigger league.

The prize of the winter meeting has been clutched by Phil Scott who is canvas inspector to the king by royal warrant.

Phil will fight Jack Sharkey for a million-dollar gate with diamond hinges. This has caused much jealousy among our native fighters who claim that Phil ain't any channel swimmer in a tide of knuckles.

The last Florida fight between Sharkey and Stribling resulted in a brutal exhibition of spectators jammed in the exits. And the last time we saw Scott in the ring he must have thought he was paid for baiting a mouse trap.

There hasn't been an English heavyweight who looked good since Bombardier Wells. The Bombardier had mastered the art of riding with the punch. He rode right out of the ring.

Scott is a better fighter than his opponents think. If the fight starts on the mezzanine Phil will bob up in the lobby with another challenge.

Heavyweights have a fascination for the public who crowded a gymnasium to see Primo Carnera defeat a sand-bag thereby demonstrating man's superiority over the lower animals.

Primo weights three hundred, wears eighteen shoes and is almost seven feet tall. He has been challenged by Art Shires who plays baseball in the summertime for Chicago but is more democratic in the winter.

Shires has been challenged in turn by Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics and Hack Wilson, another Chicagoan. These contests have been vetoed by Judge Landis, herman of baseball, for some obscure reason.

Probably because Judge Landis cannot fine baseball players for fighting during the winter.

The big purses dished up in fighting has made us a belligerent crew. So many people are willing to fight at the drop of the hat that we do not blame collegians for going bareheaded.

The only mistake we made in our climb for the heavyweight crown was last New Year Eve. We challenged a raccoon coat. The next time we challenge a raccoon coat we will first check up its inhabitants.

There were three students in this one.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

SEC. 6. FLATWORMS

THE Platyhelminthes or flatworms are for the most part parasitic. Their organization is curious, and we may introduce ourselves to it by examining a particular member of the group.

H. G. Wells

Planaria lactea is a white, flat worm-like creature, about three-quarters of an inch long, that leads the life of a scavenger at the bottom of freshwater ponds, nourishing itself for the most part on dead organic matter.

Usually it travels along with a smooth gliding motion; from time to time it varies this somewhat monotonous method of progression by "looping" like a looper caterpillar.

The head of Planaria is interesting. Our own heads are chiefly remarkable for two reasons; first, because they contain the chief sense-organs and the brain, and second, because they contain the mouth and the apparatus for taking in food.

Now the head of Planaria is only half a head; it carries the brain and eyes, but it has no mouth. The mouth, instead of being at the front end of the body, is placed at the end of a long tube that sticks out of the middle of the belly; moreover it combines the functions of mouth and anus.

Another curious feature of this animal is that it possesses no circulatory system at all, although, unlike an intestinal roundworm, it is an actively moving creature. The body-cavity is full with spongy connective tissue, through which the digestive and excretory systems ramify like the branches of trees. Since there is no blood, the branching intestine has itself to carry food into every corner of the body and the branching kidney-system has to run into every corner and drain their waste-products away. Moreover, Planaria has no special respiratory organs; its body is so thin that enough oxygen to satisfy its needs can diffuse in through the tissues.

The phylum platyhelminthes comprises three classes. The first class is that to which Planaria belongs: they live for the most part independently in damp places on the land, in fresh water, and in the sea, but one or two of them are parasites.

The second class is the flukes—a group consisting entirely of parasite forms.

These animals show the most ingenious devices for invading and destroying their unwilling hosts; we may illustrate the point by following the life-history of the liver-fluke, Fasciola hepatica, found in sheep and causing the wasting disease known as sheep-rot, particularly in beasts that feed in wet, soggy pastures—a life-history that is surprising because it involves a regularly alternating rhythm of several quite different generations.

The flukes that inhabit and devour the liver of an infected sheep are hermaphrodite—any one individual having both male and female organs—but nevertheless they fertilize each other.

Like most parasites, they are incredibly prolific. Their microscopic eggs are carried by the bile down the bile-duct of the sheep to the intestine; thence, among the faeces, they reach the exterior.

During the next spell of warm moist weather, the hard egg-shell breaks and there emerges a creature very unlike its parents.

This creature, the miracidium, has a tiny conical body covered with cilia, two eyes of very elementary structure, and no mouth or stomach. Begotten by parents over an inch long, it is itself less than one two-hundredth of that size.

Nevertheless it is active from the moment of hatching. It swims about in the puddles or ditches or larger pools in the grazing meadows, or even through the thin surface film of water left on the grass after rain or dew, with every appearance of eager purpose.

Now there are certain kinds of snail which live in ponds or among the damp grass in swampy places, and it is for one of these that the little creature is searching.

Its eagerness is excusable, for unless it succeeds in its quest within eight hours, it perishes. But if it does succeed, it bores its way into the body of the snail and alters in shape, becoming a long, hollow bag.

At this stage it rests, nourished by the snails blood and growing slowly, for about a fortnight; then it reproduces itself—it gives rise to a number of embryos and dies. That is the first generation.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

HAVE you an Inferiority Complex?

Perhaps you think you haven't. Perhaps you THINK that you think you're the cansry's eyebrows! Perhaps you have a mink coat and a snappy imported car and a lot of autographed photographs of celebrities hanging around. And you KNOW you're "somebody."

But don't fool yourself. You've got a nice full-grown inferiority complex—and any psychoanalyst can prove it! If not, why do you keep those autographed photographs so conspicuously displayed?

You keep them there, dear heart, in order to give you a sense of importance—to bolster up your ego! You like to look at them and say, 'Well! Look who's here!" It reassures your I. C.

Why do you need an imported car and a mink coat, anyway? A taxicab would be far more convenient, and get you there just as quickly. A cheap muskrat coat would keep you just as warm.

But an imported car and a mink coat give you that delicious, luxurious feeling of superiority. You just love to whirl along, looking at people in cheap muskrat coats and battered old taxicabs. It helps a lot to reduce that high inferiority-pressure!

Why do you tip the waiter and the hat-check boy so magnificently? Is it because you are thinking of their wives and kiddies? Is yourself! It is because their smiles make you feel all aglow with self-righteousness, or, more likely, because a sneer would go right through you and button up the back, and send your I. C. scurrying up like the mercury on a hot morning. Hell hath no fury like a waiter's scorn!

You never know just how or where to find your inferiority complex. But LOOK for it. It may be back of your adenoids, or out in the garage or in the lower left-hand bureau drawer, where you left your old driving gloves last year. An Inferiority Complex, like a husband, is always where you least suspect it to be.

Most of us are just eaten alive with one kind of Inferiority Complex or another. And lots of the most brilliant and efi of the most contemptible things we do are inspired by it.

It inspires us to beautify ourselves, polish our manners, pay our bills promptly, doll up our wives and brag about our husbands. It fills us with the urge to do Big Things, to make fortunes or write poems, or paint pictures; to build houses; plant gardens and smash records.

It also instigates us to high-hat our neighbors, spend more money than we can afford, lie about our golf score and keep up with the Joneses. If we have to rob a bank.

Don't ask me what to DO with your Inferiority Complex, when you've found it. Put it in the icebox or throw it away with your old Christmas cards, if you like. I'm not collecting Inferiority Complexes, myself. I've got one of MY OWN!

The Power of Comparison

It Affects Everything in Life

(Copyright, 1930)

WHAT IS THIS? YOU ARE NOT SURE.

THESE three pictures impress upon readers, particularly young people that want to write, THE POWER AND THE VALUE OF COMPARISON.

Looking at the first picture, you do not know what it is. There is nothing in the way of COMPARISON to tell you.

Those big white lumps might be sugar, they might be enormous blocks of ice, they MIGHT be blocks of white marble.

The third picture showing the blocks with a fly, much magnified, shows you the picture as it was really taken.

It shows the inside of a sugar bowl, the lumps of sugar of ordinary size, magnified, as is the fly, by "microphotography."

Lumps that look like small glistening icebergs in the first and second pictures are in reality only magnified lumps of sugar.

This photograph, taken in London to illustrate the art of photography, tells us something about the importance of COMPARISON in the lives of men.

A man in the mild climate of California, Florida or the French Riviera, is happy when told of a blizzard in New York, London or Paris. He compares that blizzard with his warm surroundings, and he enjoys his comfort much more. Such is human nature. Ancient preachers said the virtuous in Heaven would be made happier by the sight of sinners wailing in Hell.

Everything is comparison. The late Ogden J. Armour, who at one time had an income of several millions a year, said quite sincerely, "When I think of Rockefeller or Carnegie I feel LIKE A GYPSY."

In comparing his with vast fortunes accumulated by others, he felt as though he had nothing.

In literature of all kinds the greatest power is in comparison.

You may say, as the average man would do, "I couldn't bear to have somebody I love like anybody else."

But Shakespeare uses COMPARISON and says he would rather be a toad and live upon the vapors of a dungeon than share a corner in the heart of one he loved, etc.

In that comparison there is real power.

The ordinary mortal might say, "I don't think life amounts to very much, it is so short." That statement wouldn't amount to very much either.

Shakespeare, who above all others utilized the power of comparison, causes Macbeth, after he hears that the queen, his wife, is dead, to compare life to a brief candle, a shadow, a poor player, a tale "told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

Not many of us can find such comparisons as Shakespeare produced automatically from the wealth of his genius. But we can at least remember that comparison makes meaning plain, and gives it power.

He who uses the English language, in the effort to transfer an idea from his own head into the heads of others, should remember that the use of all tools requires work, and that use of the most important of our tools, LANGUAGE, involves more work and skill than use of any other tool.
